Mori, Holmdahl, named to panel

SACRAMENTO — Assemblyman Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton) and Senator John Holmdahl (D-Castro Valley) were named to the joint conference committee that will try to hammer out an agreement on the new $4.5 billion tax reform - school financing proposal.

The measure has won Assembly approval but needs an additional 10 votes in the Senate, Mori told The Times yesterday. Two-thirds approval is required by both houses.

Appointed to the conference committe were Assemblymen Mori, Gordan Duffy (R-Kern County), Victor Fazio (D-Los Angeles); and Senators Holmdahl, George Deukmejian (R-Long Beach) and Alan Sieroty (D-Los Angeles).

The proposal would provide $297 million immediately in school aid to the state's 1,046 local school districts.

An estimated six million homeowners and renters would receive rebates ranging from $37 - 400. The checks would be mailed to 60 per cent of all homeowners and 78 per cent of all renters in the state.

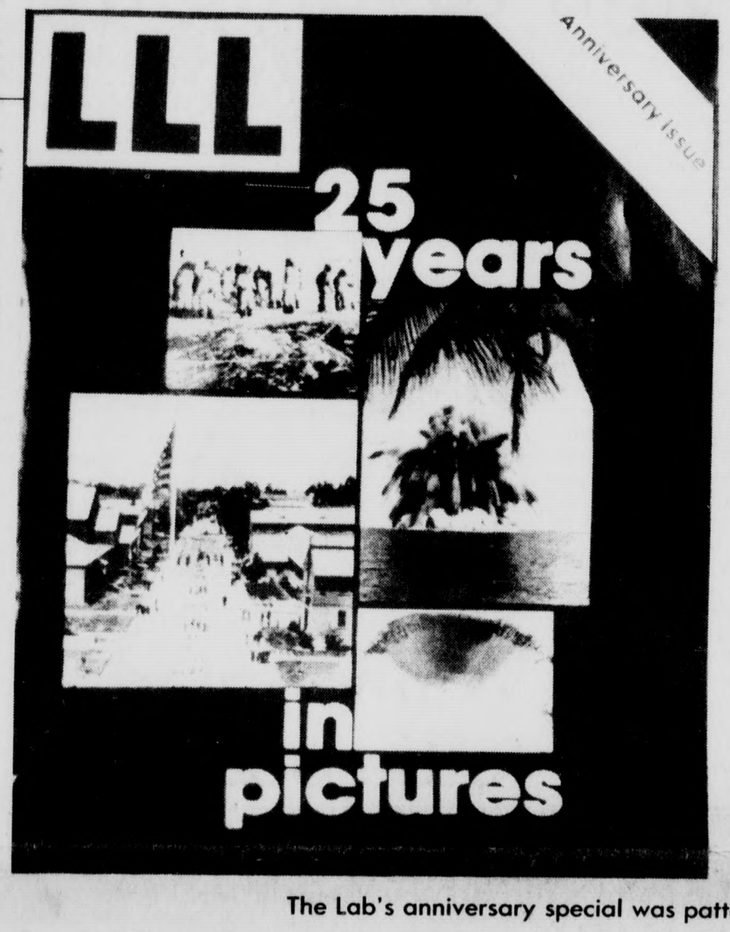
The Senate failed to concur on a compromise proposal worked out by a conference committee last Friday.

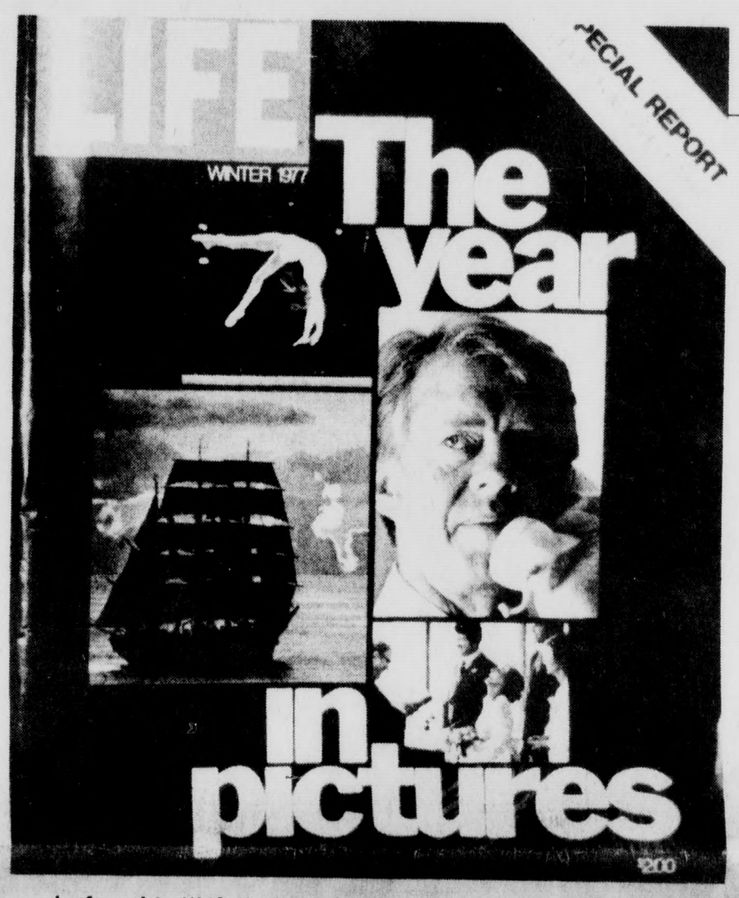
The legislative session is scheduled to end Sept. 15. Mori said he expected to work on compromise proposals for four the next four or five days. Gov. Brown could declare a special session if he deemed it an emergency situation.

Mori said he was optimistic that a compromise could be worked Senate and Assembly conferees. "I think the people have demonstrated that tax relief and reform is a major priority. We should move forward now," he said yesterday.

The major reform package would satisfy the requirements set forth in the Serrano state surpreme court decision, which stated that school districts must receive proportionately equal amounts of money, regardless of local wealth.

Valley school districts would receive an estimated $1.3 million if the proposal were passed intact, analysts estimate.





The Lab's anniversary special was patterned after this "Life" special edition.

It's history, not a sociology text

"Life" at the Lab could be the theme of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory's 25th anniversay pictorial issue released this week.

The cover, type-face and layout are borrowed from "Life" magazine's current pictorial review issue, right down to editorial message and masthead.

"That was intentional," public information officer Jeff Garberson says of the 44-page pictorial essay of the Lab's history. "The pictures follow the 'Life' format."

The $12,500 issue, erroneously reported elsewhere as costing $125,000, will be mailed "mostly" to Lab employes and retired personnel. But "we'll certainly send some to people back in Washington, D.C.," Garberson added, where the nuclear weapons and energy research center is funded by the federal Energy Research and Development Administration.

It is intended as a "pictorial history of the main scientific accomplishments that have highlighted the Lab's history," Garberson said, but has drawn fire because it fails to depict women and minorities as part of the scientific community.

Garberson defends the black and white tome.

"This business about it being some kind of racial thing just isn't true," he said. "I'm sorry as can be that some people are taking it that way ... We can't rewrite history anymore than anyone else can."

He's gotten two calls on the lack of integration in the book, both from black employes. One was "pretty angry," Garberson admits, and the other "curious and not angry."

Garberson points to the picture of a black on the page titled "Cannikin: cold days in Alaska," and a Japanese on another, earlier page of Pacific Island nuclear weapons blasts.

"We went through all the photos we could find from the time period," he said. "It's not intended to be a social history. And I do not

Pleasanton plan on new growth stirs builders

PLEASANTON — The city's proposed Growth Management Plan is a "damned if you do, damned if you don't" offering.

Such is the concensus from last night's public hearing before city planning commissioners.

Both proponents and opponents of the residential allocation program, which would decide development in the city for the next 20 years, made cautious references to suits against the city.

And City Attorney Ken Scheidig admitted "it was recognized in drafting this ordinance that we would probably be sued by one side or the other."

"You are being asked to play Solomon," he said.

"You're damned if you do, and damned if you don't."

Robert Field, attorney for the Stoneson Regional Shopping Center Development, said the proposed plan would set new rules that would eliminate the infamous 1972 Valley Community Services District-Pleasanton sewer agreement.

He wants the city to add a section to the ordinance that would give those developers involved in the 1972 suit priority in the coveted building permit sweepstakes.

Under a thinly veiled threat of suits, he said it is "not healthy for anybody to start a new round of litigation."

But former city councilman Bob Pearson, who now sits on the Zone 7 water board, said he "can't imagine environmentalists taking this to court because it would defy the E-O population growth figures.

"If it means harder litigation, I, as one citizen of Pleasanton, would say let's go to it."

City attorney Scheidig, defending his draft ordinance, said there is "flexibility" in the 1972 agreement that lets the city exercise its legal police powers "to protect the public safety, health and welfare."

He said the proposed ordinance "will have some effect, but is not intended to abbrogate that agreement."

Of the two dozen people in the audience little more than half a dozen chose to speak.

Most were against the growth control proposal claiming it would not meet housing needs and would discourage commercial and industrial development.

Others said the ordinance would save the city from the rapid growth that has brought on the wrath of environmentalists, citizens and the state and federal government.

Water units' split takes new course

The long-standing "cold war" between two Valley agencies will grow cooler tonight when the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) votes to examine water reclamation without inviting Zone 7 to act as co-sponsor for the study.

The City of Livermore and the Valley Community Services District both voter Tuesday night to exclude Zone 7 from acting as a co-sponsor for a state grant to study water reclamation and reuse in the Valley.

Pleasanton approved the joint - sponsors concept at its last meeting, but will be outvoted when the six-person board, with two representatives from each area, casts it vote tonight at 7 p.m. in Livermore City Council Chambers, 39 South Livermore Ave.

LAVWMA and Zone 7 have waged a long battle over which agency has the lead role in water reclamation and reuse. Both agencies say their early attempts to get together were rebuffed by the other side.

A liaison committee, consisting of three LAVWMA members and two Zone 7 directors, was established to work out compromise agreements

State may pay for fire

The state is considering whether or not to share in the costs of the Mt. Diablo fire Assistant County Administrator Charles Hammond told county supervisors Tuesday.

Supervisor Eric Hasseltine, Danville, has asked the county to make the request because of the extra-ordinary costs of the recent fire which is burdening the small fire districts which participated in controlling the blaze.

The state has written to the county that it is reviewing the request for funds.

Drug store robbed

DANVILLE — A bandit wielding a pearl-handled revolver robbed a drugstore here of approximately $200 late Tuesday evening.

According to sheriff's reports, the man entered Long's Drugs on San Ramon Valley Boulevard around 8:40 p.m. and loitered around the photo department.

Suddenly he approached the clerk and pulled a small handgun out of his waistband, demanding all the money in the rest registers.

"Give me all the money or I'll blow your head off," he told the clerk.

Employes were not able to see if he fled on foot or by car.

He was described as 20 to 30 years old, approximately 5-foot-6, with dark curly hair. Reports indicated that he resembled a man who had robbed a donut shop in the area the previous night.

New Town foes court Attorney General

LIVERMORE — The city council wants to add the authority of the state Attorney General's office to its fight against Harlan Geldermann's proposed new town in the Las Positas Valley.

Geldermann is trying to get a general plan amendment to change 4,000 acres of agricultural land into urban development.

The city council has contended that Geldermann has not supplied enough specific answers to problems that would be created by the Las Positas new town.

Instead Geldermann has been distorting a 1972 state law about specific plans, said the council. Geldermann is trying to make it look like his "specific" answers come later, when specific plans are to be submitted to county authorities, say local councilmembers.

The real intent of the law is to permit cities and counties to require specific planning at the later stages, but that doesn't cancel out the fact that the county should know firm answers to broad policy questions, according to Mayor Helen Tirsell.

With that in mind, City Attorney Gary Reiners was directed to get in touch with the Attorney General's office and see if that office agrees with the city's opinion.

Tirsell is especially irked by Supervisor Fred Cooper who has used the "doesn't have to be specific" argument all through the supervisors' debates on Las Positas.

Reiners told the council that with a decision due from the supervisors Sept. 22, it's too late to expect a full-fledged opinion from the attorney general's office, but it's possible to get some staff opinions on it from them.

She has more than 50 varieties.

Herbs are really very versatile. In addition to flavoring soups and stews, herbs can be used in teas, hair rinses, bug repellant and scented pillows.

-A strong tea of rosemary can be used as a hair rinse for dark hair to make it shine, said Judith. Dried herbs used to fill a pillow can have interesting effects. Judith said a mugwort will produce dreams in technicolor.

BART back on track, wage vote today

Lesher News Bureau

OAKLAND — Trains and workers returned to their normal schedule Wednesday afternoon at the Bay Area Rapid Transit District following the late-night settlement of a 14-day-old police strike.

Early Wednesday morning members of the BART Police Officers Association voted 30-1 to end their walkout after reaching a tentative settlement with management negotiators at 2:30 a.m.

The terms of that agreement which include an 11 per cent wage hike plus-cost-of-living increases, will be voted on by BART's Board of Directors at 11 a.m. this morning.

Under the strike settlement, the police appeared not to have gained victory in the "key" issue — whether police have the right to honor picket lines of other BART employe unions.

Although sworn BART police officers lost the right to honor picket lines by other employes, non-sworn police personnel, such as clerks and dispatchers, were guaranteed that right under the agreement.

Union official Paul Varacalli characterized the settlement as a "compromise," saying "our people feel very good about it."

But BART spokeswoman Diane Levine said the agreement is just what BART management would have required of the police anyway.

Striking employes, though, appeared to have won the issue of amnesty, at least internally. BART management agreed not to discipline the emplohes who honored the police strike and the unions said they won't fine or punish their members who crossee picket lines to come to work.

However, police officers who struck in defiance of a court order ruling the strike illegal must appear today at 3:30 p.m. before Alameda County Superior Court Judge William Hayes where they have agreed to plead guilty to one count each of contempt of court.

Levine said that during the strike, BART saved $1.34 million because it managed to operate more efficiently than normal.

During the strike, BART trains carried an average of 95,300 passengers a day, compared to a normal load of 144,000 riders daily.

BART General Manager Frank Herringer has said that there will be a "hard look" at BART's staffing. The operation during the strike, he acknowledged, indicated there may be too many employes.

BART management plans to continue its prosecution of police union president Eugene Jennings and vice-president Jack Strand, said Levine, who were both thrown in jail and fined for defying Hayes' Judge Hayes' court order.

Jennings was told he would remain in jail until he ordered police back to work.

But the two were released Tuesday after state Appelate Court Justice John Rancanelli signed a temporary stay of execution pending a review of Hayes' ruling.

Both Jennings and Strand reported to work Wednesday afternoon.

Wind's energy pursued

An atmospheric physicist from Lawrence Livermore Laboratory is working with a computer to confirm what Bay Area sailors and ranchers have always suspected, the wind blows strong and steady enough to generate energy here.

In the sun-baked hills above Antioch in the East Bay Region Park District's Contra Loma Park Dr. Bill Porch tests wind speed and direction as part of an LLL search for locations with winds steady enough to consistently generate power.

"Prospecting for energy," Porch calls it. A computer model developed by LLL's Christine Sherman was fed data from 20 similar Bay Area stations.

Winds in the Contra Loma region were projected as most consistent in speed and direction. Porch is working to confirm that over the next two months and obtain data that could allow a windmill to be built to generate enough electricity to run the 772-acre park's irrigation pumps and machinery.

Other potential sites according to the LLL computer were the mountain pass above Half Moon Bay in San Mateo County and the Altamont Pass.

Porch said specific data gathered in the next two months would be a big step toward verifying the computer model for use in evaluating other wind generator sites in California and nationwide.

Ironically, the model was first conceived to study possible directions air pollution or air borne waste from a nuclear accident might travel. Studies showed terrain played a major role in determining the speed and direction of the wind. LLL's next step was to determine if certain locations were more predictable.

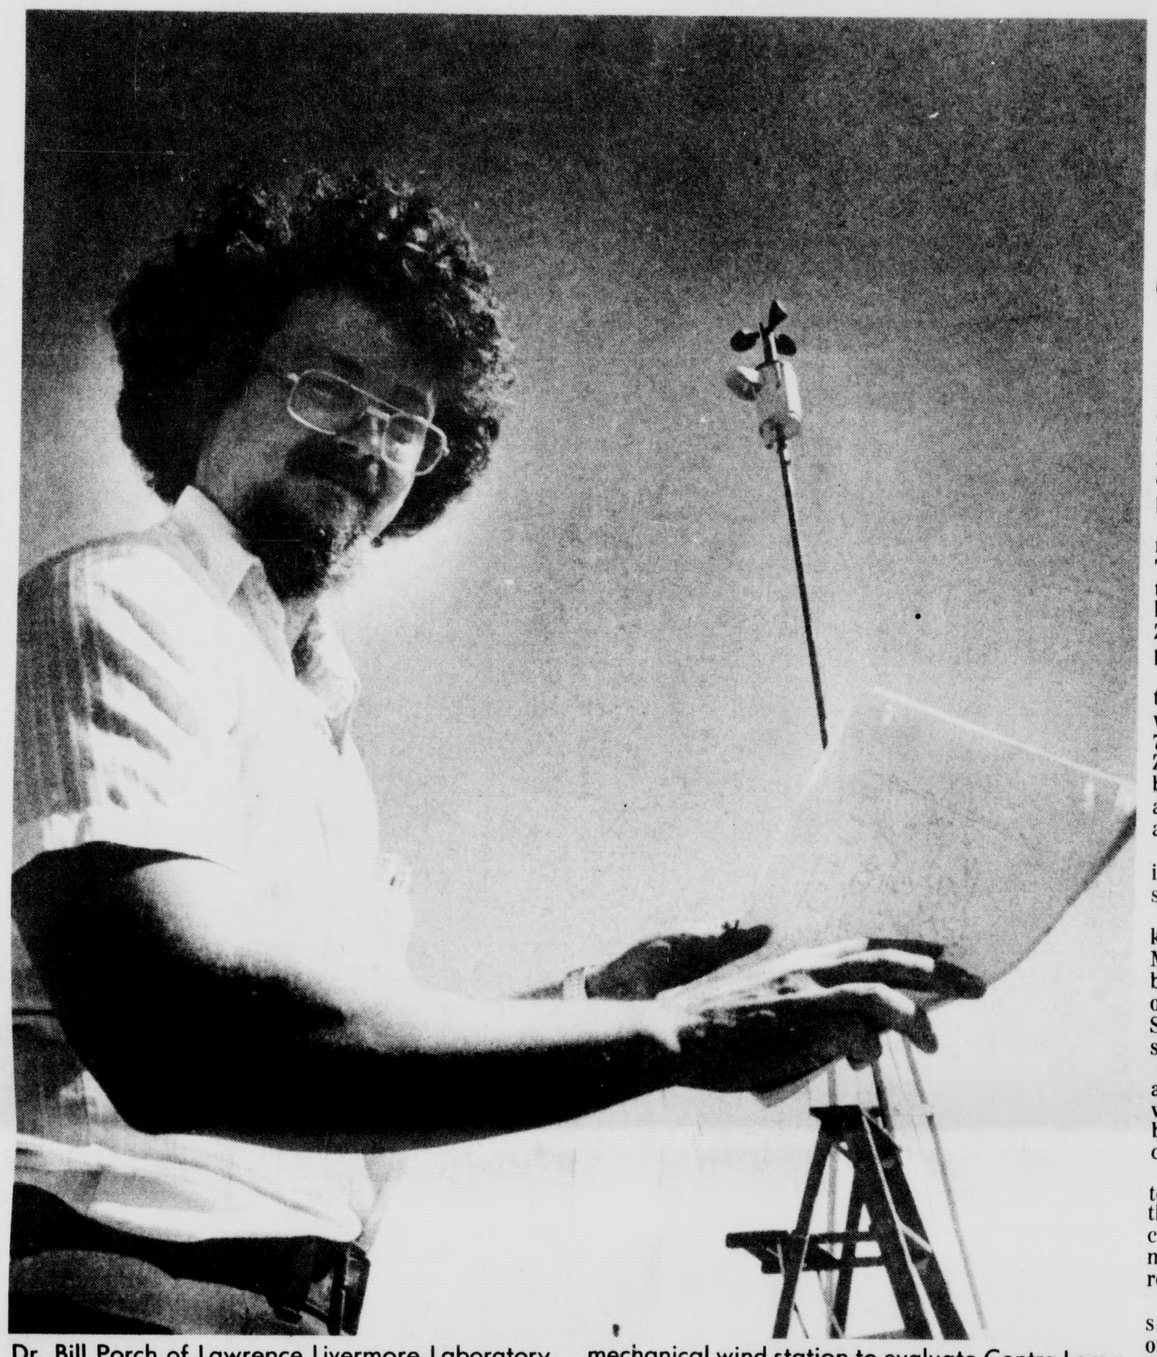
"The valleys around Carquinez pinch the wind from the entire Golden Gate," said Porch explaining why that location was used.

Porch said wind-generated electricity could supplement conventional sources in the future but added windmills had drawbacks because of their limited capacity.

"People wouldn't like to see them all over," he said.

But he added, "We're confident that wind energy on this scale where you have remote locations is going to be an economic success and compete ith gas and oil."

The hills around the park are dotted with old ranch windmills, some still working to pump well water. From the LLL wind station PG&E's giant Pittsburgh generating plant is plainly visible. The contrast is striking.



Dr. Bill Porch of Lawrence Livermore Laboratory studies computer data and information from a mechanical wind station to evaluate Contra Loma Park's potential for wind-generated electricity.

Sewer pipe plan conflict prompts design revamping

LIVERMORE — The city will have to spend $4-6,000 to redesign a part of the $38 million sewage disposal project because Zone 7 construction plans conflict at two separate points.

City Manager Bill Parness told the city council Tuesday night that an interceptor line had originally been planned where two Zone 7 channel projects are proposed.

Mayor Helen Tirsell motioned that the city proceed with the work and bill Zone 7 for the cost. Since the Zone 7 projects had not yet begun construction, she argued, it seemed fair to ask for reimbursement.

The motion passed unanimously, with Councilperson Dale Turner absent.

A request by Marcus Libkind, owner of Sunrise Mountaining, to extend the bidding period for the sale of city property on First Street was approved after some debate.

Libkind said the 30-day acceptance period for bids was too short, since the buildings could not be received for two years.

He said the city refused to reveal its estimates of the property, and asked if city officials hoped someone would offer an unreasonably high bid.

City Manager Parness said the estimates were only rough guesses of the property's worth. Such information is usually confidential, he added.

The council voted to extend the bidding period an additional 30 days. The property is located at 2250 and 2365 First Street.

After consulting with Livermore Police Chief Ronald Lindgren, the city heard the first reading of proposed amendments to city law concerning card rooms.

Card room hours would be extended to 10 a.m. to 2 a.m., Monday through Thursday, and from 10 a.m. Friday continuously to 2 a.m. Monday.

No more than five tables would be allowed in any car room, with no more than eight players per table. Cashing of checks would not be allowed.

A current law disallowing any outside sign on a card room would be removed under the proposal. City Attorney Gary Reiners said no one could remember why exterior signs were prohibited in the first place.

Parness said Maple Street would be paved Thursday. P Street would be paved in the next few days, he said, and would probably cause some traffic disruption.

The Sprintgtown Golf Course pro shop was nearly completed, Parness said, and would be ready for occupancy in about a week. The snack shop would be finished in about a month.

The First Street overpsass project was 65 per cent complete, Parness reported.

Winner glad to be back

Newly elected Valley Community Services District director, Joseph Covello, said he is looking forward to assuming his new duties.

"I'm just sorry I have to wait until Dec. 6 to get started officially," Covello said after being elected with 935 votes in the mailed-ballot election that wound up Tuesday night at 8 p.m.

He will be replacing VCSD Director Ron Hyde who declined to run again. A second director's chair was to be vacated by Lila Euler. She sought reelection and rewon her position.

Four other candidates were also in the running.

Covello said it was somewhat difficult campaigning in a mailed-ballot election, particularly at this time of the year when everybody's mind was on vacations prior to school starting.

"But I had great people helping me; especially my wife and son."

Covello said his capacity with the VCSD Citizens' Advisory Committee for four years allowed him to obtain a knowledge of VCSD activities, procedures and policies that would prove to be an asset as a director.

"I think people appreciated the fact I had some experience with VCSD."

He said he was working on finishing up CAC activities in order to leave things in good shape. He will have to relinquish his CAC chairmanship when he assumes his directorial duties.

Getting people more involved in their local government is one of his chief goals, Covello said.

Euler won 1159 votes from supporters. The only incumbent, Euler served as board president in 1974 through 1975. She also serves as Chairperson of the Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA).

Among other things, Euler has supported the masterplan review, additional personnel and equipment for the fire department without increase in taxes, fiscal responsibility, environmental constraints, air quality mitigation measures, a modest 2 per cent growth rate in conjunction with legally required sewer projects, an efficiency study of the sewage treatment plant and legislation to enable VCSD to provide transportation services.

Her goals are to "continue to work hard to respond to the public's wishes."

She contends maximum citizen participation is built into the parks and recreation masterplan review and citizen opinion would influence her decisions.

He admits he "wasn't around then," and is unfamiliar with the ethnic makeup of the Lab back on the early 1950s.

The Lab, since it supported by the public kitty, now must adhere to an affirmative action program to show equality of employment among minorities and women.

The anniversary issue, with a press run of 25,000 was laid out by the editorial staff of "Newsline," the Lab's weekly newspaper, a part of Garberson's public information office.

Builder plans a 12-acre retirement home in town

PLEASANTON — Developer Robert J. Myers, who put up the city's convalescent hospital, has taken the first steps toward building a 119-unit retirement home on Las Lomitas Drive above the Pleasanton School's play field.

Myers has appealed city planning director Bob Harris' requirement that an Environmental Impact Report be filed on the proposed home. City council will hear the appeal Sept. 20.

Myers wants to build the facility on some 12.7 acres at the southern stub of Las Lomitas Drive in the undeveloped land that splits the two sections of Abbie Street. He owns about 30 acres on the site, according to Harris.

"We don't have anything like it in town," Harris said of the proposal. "It would be mainly one-bedroom units, but efficiency units. There would be some two-bedrooms units and a communal dining room. It would be a 'limited care' facility."

"One of the major reasons we're asking for the EIR is to address the traffic problem," Harris added.

Current plans call for Las Lomitas Drive as the primary access street, with eventual use of the planned Pico Avenue. But "Las Lomitas is shown as ultimately the major access," Harris said.

The land currently is zoned for agricultural use, according to the planning director. Myers, he said, bought the land about a year ago.

The previous owner had petitioned the city for a zoning change to move the land from its residential designation to agricultural area.

Harris said neighbors were "very vocal about wanting large lot residential" development on the land, not the former seven homes to the acre zoning.

Water agencies split

between the two groups. It recommended that the reclamation study be conducted jointly.

Pleasanton Mayor Robert Philcox, a member of LAVWMA who sits on the liaison committee, yesterday expressed regret that the proposal to work together would go down to defeat tonight. He termed the expected action a "a political slap in the face to the Zone."

"Lila Euler (VCSD), Marshall Kamena (Livermore), Anne Jolley (VCSD), Helen Tirsell (Livermore) they,re members of COVA (Congress of Valley Agencies). They're always hollering that 'The Valley must cooperate,' but here's a chance for cooperation and they turn it down - I don't understand," Philcox said yesterday.

The reasons given for not allowing Zone 7 to co-sponsor the study "are superficial," Philcox said. He said "speeches" about Valley cooperation are "a lot of talk."

Opponents of the joint - sponsor plan say Zone 7 has refused earlier attempts at cooperation and disregarded requests for input on other matters.

Some 15,000 San Ramon residents in the VCSD service area are served by the East Bay Municipal Utilities District and would not be represented by the Zone, others say.

At Livermore's city council meeting Tuesday, Zone 7 chairman Gib Marguth made a brief talk in favor of the dual-sponsor concept before the council unanimously voted the measure down.

Arthur Futch, Zone 7 director and former mayor of Livermore, reminded the council that Zone 7 was still considering Chester Anderson's request for a privately - operated sewage treatment system to service a planned 300-unit apartment.

Year-Round school pilot plan slated in San Ramon

DANVILLE — The Board of Trustees of the San Ramon Valley Unified School District Tuesday night gave tentative support to a recommendation for startup of a pilot year-round schools program on July 1 next year.

But the board asked that members of the Citizens Committee on Year-Round Schools further inform the general public of the issue and their recommendations, prior to returning to the board Oct. 17.

Joan Marsh, chairperson of the citizens panel, presented the report and recommendations.

The recommendation follows a board action of July 12 notifying state Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles that it is the district's intent to establish a year-round school program beginning next July.

The recommendation asks that a pilot program involving at least two elementary schools be started next summer.

Further studies will determine how many and what specific schools are to be placed on the 45/15 organizational plan.

Selection of the schools to be placed in the program will be determined "where circumstances appear most favorable for implementation of the pilot program."

The report further adds that "due to the cost involved, the committee is reluctant to recommend implementation of the pilot program at any non-air-conditioned school, except at the direction of the board."

Most of the schools within the San Ramon district with air conditioning are located in the southern section.

The 45/15 reference is to the number of school and vacation days on a modified calendar in which the 180-day instructional year is broken into shorter blocks of time. For example, in each 60-day block, there would be 45 school days and 15 vacation.

In other business Tuesday, trustees selected Donald Sledge as the new vice president of the board to replace Ronald Harris, who resigned his board position in July to accept a job with a Dallas, Texas, firm.

District voters will choose from among four candidates on Nov. 8 to fill a portion of Harris' unexpired term. The board aspirants include Karen Stepper, Don Smith, Joan Scott and Michael Wahlig.

The board also approved resolutions covering the TEAM (Training for Expertise in Advanced Methodology) Program, Right to Read Program, and a course of study and district curriculum guides, grades K-8.

Pleasanton schools expect $218,000 from state bill

PLEASANTON — The Pleasanton Joint School District may get an additional $218,000, as a result of AB-65, beyond what it had projected in its adopted budget for 1977-78.

Doug Rose, assistant superintendent for business, said the foundation program had been increased about $45 per student. This amounts to about $14 million statewide for restructuring or extending programs such as Early Childhood Education. Rose said there was also about $14 million to expand Special Education.

Rose said it appears the district will receive about $42.10 per student, following a late afternoon phone call from a state representative.

These monies are in addition to what the district gets from SB-90 and trailer bills.

Though the legislature has approved AB-65, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has not taken action yet. He has until September 14 to sign or veto before the legislation becomes law.

School principals reported on open day enrollment with most reporting decreases.

Harvest Park reported 980, Pleasanton 900, Walnut Grove 758, Alisal 660, Vintage Hills 236 and Valley View 745. Fairlands did not report a number but said the air conditioning was malfunctioning again.

Harvest Park principal Dale Hudson said there were 99 new students registered of the total 990. He said block classes at the seventh grade level were a fraction over 33 per class.

Principal Ron Alsup at Pleasanton said enrollment was down about 100.

Supt. Bruce Newlin said the district was really looking towards next Monday or Tuesday to get a more accurate reading on total enrollment.

Miss Hazen, daughter of Norval and Elsa Hazen of Pleasanton, was All Around Cowgirl while attending UC-Davis in 1976 and 1977. After earning her Master's Degree from Cal Poly, she plans to attend Texas A&M University. Miss Hazen was the 1973 Miss Jr. Grand National and has been showing cattle for 10 years.

Miss Grand National will be selected on horsemanship, grooming, personality, appearance, maturity and poise. She will serve as the official hostess for the entire show and will ride in the opening ceremonies.

Chabot courses gear students for future pursuits, job goals

Two classes, each concerned with individual development, are part of the 1977 autumn quarter schedule at Chabot College Valley Campus.

One, vocational educational planning, is designed to pinpoint individual interests, abilities, and skills in order to match them more realistically with an individual's occupational goals.

"Many people express dissatisfaction with their jobs," Michael Trout, the instructor, said. "It's unfortunate we don't have a means of transferring one individual to his preferred type task on a nation-wide level.

"What we do have is a means of planning to reduce the risk of performing dissatisfying tasks. By prior planning, knowing ourselves, knowing our occupations and employers, and matching the two realistically, we can plan choices effectively."

This particular class will meet in Room 302 G from 7 to 9:50 p.m. on Thursdays at Granada High School in Livermore.

The other class, job hunting, meets four weeks each Saturday in Room 502 at the Valley Campus from 8 until 9:50 a.m., beginning Sept. 24. It will emphasize job hunting skills and employment interviews.

An advanced first aid and emergency care class, Health 6-99, will be offered from 8 until 11:50 a.m. on Saturdays in Room 505 at Valley Campus.

In addition to artificial respiration, sudden illness, and specific injuries, the class will discuss how to care for fractures, a drowning victim, injuries due to over-exposure to heat and cold, overdose of drugs, and emergency child birth.

Watching films, participating in discussions, and plenty of practice are expected of participants, according to Joanne Berven, the instructor. At the conclusion of the class, a Red Cross Certificate for Advance First Aid and Emergency Care will be given. There are no prerequisites for the course except a desire to learn and to help others.

Late registration for this course will be held Tuesday, Sept. 13, from 6 to 9 p.m., at the Valley Campus or at the first class meeting Sept. 24.

Delay in Las Trampas trail link

Lesher News Bureau

HAYWARD — A contract for the second one-mile stretch of the Lafayette-Moraga Trail was awarded to a Concord firm this week by the East Bay Regional Park District.

The bid of $114,858 by the R.E. Jones Co. was the lowest submitted to the district's governing board.

The new section of the trail will pick up at its present end at the intersection of St. Mary's Road and Bollinger Canyon Road, continuing along the former Caltrans right-of-way into the Town of Moraga.

It will eventually wind its way to Las Trampas Park, but Moraga officials have asked for a delay in completion until the town's general plan is completed.

The Moraga Park and Recreation Authority is planning to install a "Par Course" along the trail route, a pre-planned physical fitness course where joggers can stop at various locations to use simple exercise devices.

Camp Parks lease okayed

DUBLIN — A 25-year lease extension agreement has been reached between the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) and the Department of the Army regarding Camp Parks land.

A former VCSD lease for the 122.92 acre parcel has been in effect since last October. The new lease, approved by VCSD directors Tuesday night, will run from Oct. 1, 1977 until Sept. 30, 2002.

The parcel comprises all but 16.85 acres of the existing sewage treatment facility at Camp Parks.

The rental fee is $6000 yearly plus $325 per month for fire protection. Other costs pay for utilities and staff.

Lease terms also call for VCSD to provide the Department of the Army at Camp Parks with sewage treatment service for up to 300,000 gallons of sewage daily as long as the lease is in effect.

If the Army alters the lease terms, VCSD has the right to terminate and/or modify the sewage treatment contract.

According to lease conditions,the Government pays "mutually agreeable" sewage treatment rates. However, the Government is not required to pay any fees relating to sewer connections, capitalization, or maintenance.

Regular lease conditions pertaining to property upkeep on the part of both leasing parties are included in the terms.

Other VCSD board business revolved around a recommendation to approve an amendment to Zone 7's rate-making policy.

Zone 7 officials want the leeway of making water rate changes annually if necessary to keep abreast of inflationary trends. Their original policy was to make necessary changes every five years.

VCSD directors agreed to the amendment with one stipulation that was advised by their legal counsel. The stipulation was that any necessary rate changes be adopted by Zone 7 at least sixty days prior to Jan. 1 of each year or result in a waiver of an increase for that year.

The idea behind that advice was to give VCSD adequate time to adjust its own rate structure in accordance with Zone 7 changes. Zone 7 furnishes water on a wholesale basis to VCSD, City of Livermore, City of Pleasanton, California Water Service Company, Veterans Administration Hospital and Lawrence Livermore Laboratory. VCSD and the others act as contracting agencies.

Insane find

WOODLAND (AP) — An Iraqi student who told the court a television program ordered him to kill has been found innocent of murder by reason of insanity.

Yolo County Superior Court Judge Harry A. Ackley accepted a plea of innocence Tuesday from Khalid Ibrahem Al-Amin, 34, a graduate student at the University of California at Davis, and committed him to Atascadero State Hospital.

The judge said Al-Amin was "suffering from schizophrenia of the paranoid type" and "did not know what he was doing . . . did not know the difference between right and wrong."

Thyme is on your side . . . basil and sage can be too

Hidden behind a normal suburban front yard in Dublin is Judith Cope's wonderful herb garden. She grows over 50 kinds of plants from common rosemary to the rarer mugwort.

Judith Cope grows herbs. Her Dublin yard is full of them. She has herbs that smell like lemon drops. Herbs that make your hair shine. And herbs that can produce dreams to rival "Star Wars."

Judith took me on a tour of her herb garden, a tour for the nose as wonderful as a trip to Baskin Robbins is to the taste buds. She has over 50 varieties ranging from common cooking herbs to a patch of Colonial herbs to some plants reputed to have magical powers.

Herbs are easy to grow, said Judith. Just plant them in soil with good drainage, a little on the alkaline side. They take very little water and even less care.

She should know — hers were in splendid shape. We first examined the common cooking herbs.

Sage sold in the store is usually garden sage, but there are other varieties. Judith grows black, golden, dwarft and variegated. Sage is used in poultry and pork seasoning.

Judith said the Chinese used to trade two pounds of Chinese tea for one pound of sage tea from England. Sage also makes a nice ground cover, explained Judith.

Rosemary can be used in cooking, but it can also be used as a hair rinse for dark hair to make it shine. She added that with the little blue flowers that bud on it "it is one of the most beautiful herbs."

Thymes come in many varieties and are very easy to grow. Judith grows lemon, creeping (also called mother of thyme), common, and English broadleaf and French narrowleaf. She says you usually get the English or French type from the market.

She said a gourmet honey is made from thyme. It is usually used to season soups and stews. Dried leaves can be mixed with butter and rubbed on poultry before cooking.

Basil is most often used with tomatoes. "In the last two years I haven't had any luck with it. But, all the books will tell you no one has any trouble growing basil."

Spearmint "is everybody's mint." It was taking command in Judith's garden, but in another spot she grows other kinds — orangemint, peppermint, pineapplemint and applemint.

After smelling and tasting the common types I was ready to go onto some of the rarer herbs.

Peppergrass is an innocent-looking low-growing plant. But as Judith warned, "One small taste will tear your head off. It did. So, she took me to try another herb French taragon which has just the opposite effect. A nibble on the taragon will make the tip of your tongue go numb. Not surprisingly, it was once used in dentistry for that very reason.

Judith grows the French taragon because it has more flavor than the Russian variety that comes in the store.

Since my senses had been taking such a beating, Judith aimed me in the direction of a rare South American herb, lemon verbena. A wiff of this herb makes you think you've been munching lemmon drops.

She said it makes a very good tea and is used in apple jelly for added flavor. And because it holds its wonderful scent so well, it is used in sachets.

Other fragrant herbs are the lavenders, French lavender and English lavender.

Pelergoniums are called geraniums and are used for their scent as well. If you rub the bottom of the leaves on Judith's pelergoniums you'll discover that she grows apple, lemmon, peppermint, camphor, nutmeg, ginger and gooseberry varieties. She also has a rose scented bush that is used in perfumery to save the expense of using real rose oil.

Mugwort is a very rare herb used in flavoring ales and in pagen summer ceremonies, explained Judith. She said that if you stuff a pillow with dried mugwort you will have very brillant dreams, "Star Wars" type dream. This herb is also used in magic potions.

Another rare herb, wormwood, is what is used in making absinthe, a green alcoholic liquor. Its continued use causes nervous derangement. Van Gogh and La Toulouse-Lautrec were victims of this drink, explained Judith. She says she uses wormwood to keep moths away.

Ajuga is usually used as a ground cover, but is an herb that is a heart stimulant. She said it should be kept away from kids.

Catnip is another herb with drug effects. Judith said when her cat gets around it he gets "plastered." She added that when made into a tea it is good for headaches. It is also an old remedy for kids. "A sip of the tea gets cranky kids to go to sleep," said Judith.

Pennyroyal is also good if you have pets. Judith suggested making a tea and dipping a string in it to make a flea collar.

In keeping with the Bicentennial, Judith has a patch of herbs from Colonial days. Tansy, also called "bitter buttons," is used to flavor tansy pudding. A tea can be made from it, but it is habit forming, warned Judith.

Bergamon is one of few native American herbs. The Colonials used it to make "liberty tea" when their tea supply was cut short by the Boston Tea Party.

Costmary was appropriately called "bible leaf" because it has long road leaves that were used as bookmarks. "It is very hot flavored and they would nibble on the leaf to keep awake during the three-hour sermons," said Judith.

Angelica means angel and it is said that it won't grow for the wicked. Judith looked at her wilting plant and said, "I'm getting a little worried." It is often candied and used to decorate cakes. Angelica, like many herbs, has a licorice taste.

Judith said most herbs are available from local nurseries. Some, though may have to be ordered, and others, like mugwort may take some time to locate. She suggested a good selection to begin with would be oregano, rosemary, sage and thyme. These can be grown in a two foot by four foot plot that "gets plenty of sun."

"If kids are around, I wouldn't recommend ajuga, wormwood, rue or tansy." She also suggested that before anyone tries anything but the common herbs they check with an herb book. "Herb Gardening in Five Seasons," by Adelma Simmons is the book that got Judith started.

Some easy herb tips

Herbs have many uses, and herb teas are gaining popularity especially with the increase in coffee prices. Judith Cope said making tea from herbs is very easy.

First, she warned, use only an enamel or glass container to boil the water. The tea will pick up a metalic flavor if a metal pot is used.

Then, she said, just boil water and drop in the herb. You can tell by smell or color when it is strong enough for you, she said.

If the tea will be used for a hair rinse, Judith said to let it steep for a longer time.

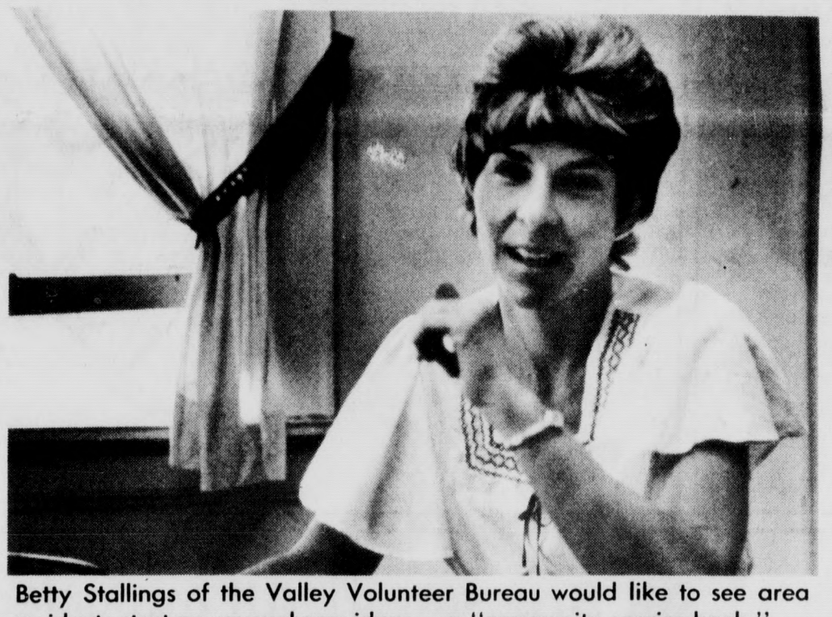
Herb teas can also be used as a bug spray for other plants. She suggests catnip for this use.

Herbs are easily dried for cooking. Judith said you simply cut them and tie a bunch together at the stems and hang in a dry place out of the sun until they are "crispy dry."

Judith explained that you should pick the herbs before 10 in the morning, after the dew has dried, so the oils dont have a chance to evaporate in the day's heat.

Herbs should be stored in "tightly closed jars in the cupboard and out of the light," explained Judith. She maintained that most herbs purchased at the store are already three years or older. She suggested keeping herbs no longer than two years.

This 'bank's' interests are people and love



Betty Stallings of the Valley Volunteer Bureau would like to see area residents start an unusual new idea — a "community service bank."

Betty Stallings wants to start a new community bank. Not with money, but with people.

The head of the Valley Volunteer Bureau, an agency which matches jobs with area volunteers, has come up with an idea which she says may be a unique thing for a community to undertake.

It's a "community service bank," a kind of bureau where people in the area could "list" what kinds of jobs — from macrame demonstrations to travel lectures they are willing to perform for area schools, hospitals or clubs. And, organizations could consult the "bank," say if they needed a person who specialized in playing the clarinet.

"People in the community could tell us, 'I have a skill, and I want to share it,'" Stallings explains. "Whoever is looking for that skill could benefit." Stallings envisions the "community service bank," as she calls it, as someday involving hundreds of area people who may wish to share their hobbies — or learn from someone else in the community.

"We'd really like to reach seniors in the area, to tap their resources," Stallings explained. "They sometimes need an outlet after they've retired. Many of them have skills that they've gained through their whole lives, skills that could be utilized by the community. Instead of being put out to pasture, they could share what they know with others."

Seniors, however, would not have to be the only ones who benefit from the program, according to Stallings. Kids who are looking for "new ways to try out certain talents," like radio repair or singing, could register their skills in the "bank" and maybe play music for a seniors dance, or help someone repair an applicance.

Men or women with college degrees, Stalling said, could visit area schools or clubs for an hour, or on a regular basis, to share what they know in their field.

It could, eventually, develop into a way for people to get together, exchanging gardening help for music lessons, for example. "You could reap the skills of other people by giving of your own," said Stallings.

Right now, however, Stallings said the program must be "a gradual thing." "We're looking for a community service organization or a club which will back us up in the effort to get this thing off the ground," she said. "And we need to get some energetic people together who help get this will brainstorm and reach out to the community." "There are so many places to go," Stallings adds, "but we need people to go places." After that, she'd like to begin reaching out to the community — churches, libraries, local schools and organizations — to inform them of what the "bank" could do. Interested people and clubs can contact the Valley Volunteer Bureau at 462-3570.

"The skill is thick in the community," Stallings maintains. "We just have to get in touch with people who can use or give it." And also get in touch with "people who'd like to get in on the ground floor, and help this project get started."

Any volunteers?

MD pledges slow

Valley residents pledged $58,251 during this year's Jerry Lewis Telethon for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, according to Jolene Abrahams, area MDA coordinator.

That amount tops last year's pledges of $56, 513 for the area, Abrahams said. "But that's the lowest we've ever come in ahead," Abrahams added. "There were times during the night when the phone calls just came to a standstill."

The largest pledge received was one for $4000; another Concord resident called in to pledge $1000. Although the local MDA just exceeded last year's pledges by a small amount on the local level, Abrahams said she was "surprised and pleased" that national pledges raised more than $26 million for muscular dystrophy.

"We can't come up with any one reason why our area didn't do that well," Abrahams said. "First, we'll have to see how the other areas compare with us."

Too much culture for just one man?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret Service bodyguards assigned to White House duty often find themselves cast as sphinxlike witnesses to history. Some also become culture vultures, if only by osmosis.

Take the case of Richard Keiser, the chief of President Carter's bodyguard force. He has seen the durable musical "Man of La Mancha" so often it must seem like "The Impossible Dream," which of course is the hit song of the show.

Keiser first saw the musical with Lynda Bird Johnson, then his principal protectee, when Richard Kiley created the role on Broadway during the administration of Lyndon B. Johnson.

The veteran Secret Service agent saw it again when Lynda Bird went back with her beau of the moment, actor George Hamilton.

Then Lynda returned with her mother, Lady Bird, and Keiser was there.

When Jose Ferrer took over the title role from Kiley, Lynda Bird returned for the fourth time. Of course, Keiser was present.

He returned to "Man of La Mancha" at the National Theater here last month when the President and Mrs. Carter saw it with Kiley back as the star.

"It's a good thing I like it," said Keiser. "Truly it's one of my favorites. But the time I really enjoyed it was when I took my wife."

World Series of Monopoly

England (AP) — Empire-builders sat atop a nuclear reactor in "clean" coats and protective hats Wednesday to match wits and daring in one of the world's great challenges — Monopoly.

The setting and outfits were futuristic, and the place names on the board would be foreign to Americans, but the strategy was the time-honored cutthroat buy-and-sell, and Frederick Brown emerged as British champion of the ever-popular game of real estate make-believe.

The 34-year-old, gum-chewing draftsman from southern England outsmarted 119 other contestants ranging in age from 10 to 67 to win a silver tray and an expense-paid trip to Monaco on Oct. 22-26 for the world championship tournament.

There Brown, who plays in his stocking-feet, will test his entrepreneurship against 19 national winners, including the American entry who wins in New York later this month.

The two-day British championships were held in a sterilelooking room on the concrete and steel floor above the reactor at a nuclear power station in this town in western England.

Four players sat at each of 30 tables spread out over a thick checkerboard-style floor separating them from equipment that generates a constant power output of 410 million watts.

Each had to wear protective white coats and hats, laminated plastic identification badges and QFEs — quartz fiber electrometers that measure radiation.

"Certainly the contest was held in a safe area and there was no radiation, but the QFEs are worn so a person can look at the instrument and see he isn't getting any," said a power plant spokesman.

Closed circuit television cameras — standard equipment at the plant — were modified to beam the competition to friends and relatives gathered under a gaily decorated lawn tent outside where picnic lunches were served during the competition.

Each year the tourney sponsored by a British game firm is staged in a setting representing some location on the Monopoly board.

Few labor problems in schools

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As the fall school term arrives, 87 per cent of California's public school teachers are represented by unions but major labor strife is looming in only three cities — San Francisco, Walnut Creek and Fremont.

The most serious turmoil Wednesday was in San Francisco, where the scheduled opening of classes was delayed at least until Monday because no contract agreement had been reached for 4,000 teachers in the 66,000-student district.

If no settlement is reached by Sunday, San Francisco Supt. Robert Alioto said he will postpone the opening for another week.

In Walnut Creek, classes opened as scheduled without a contract for 1,900 teachers in the 41,000-student Mt. Diablo Unified School District.

State conciliator John Wormuth scheduled a meeting for 7 p.m. to try to mediate the Mt. Diablo dispute.

The 600 teachers in the 14,000- pupil Fremont Union High School District voted Wednesday to call off a strike scheduled for Friday, and to instead take their fight to court.

Fremont's six high schools opened on schedule Tuesday, but some teachers have refused to perform voluntary extra duties, such as coaching and department head functions, pending a settlement, said union leader Mike Ford.

San Francisco teachers, who voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to reject the Board of Education's latest offer, scheduled another meeting for 4 p.m. Sunday to either ratify a contract, take a strike vote or initiate "other necessary action."

Under provisions of a state law which took effect in January 1976, the California Teachers Association — previously a professional association — has been the big winner in representation elections.

The CTA represents 171,000 certificated personnel in 783 districts, which is 78 per cent of the total, said public information officer Elmer Wells.

The California Federation of Teachers, an AFL-CIO affiliate, representes about 20,000 certificated employes in 26 districts, said public information officer Ralph Lloyd.

The balance have either independent representation or have yet to vote.

Lloyd said the CFT did better than it expected to do in the first round of elections, and predicted the AFL-CIO affiliate will be picked later to replace the CTA in many districts.

"The difference is that our local leaders are trained and experienced and CTA does not have sufficient staff to serve all their collective bargaining units," Lloyd said.

"We anticipate that beginning some time in late winter or early spring, there will be a rash of decertification elections, where teachers will oust the CTA and elect CFT to bargain."

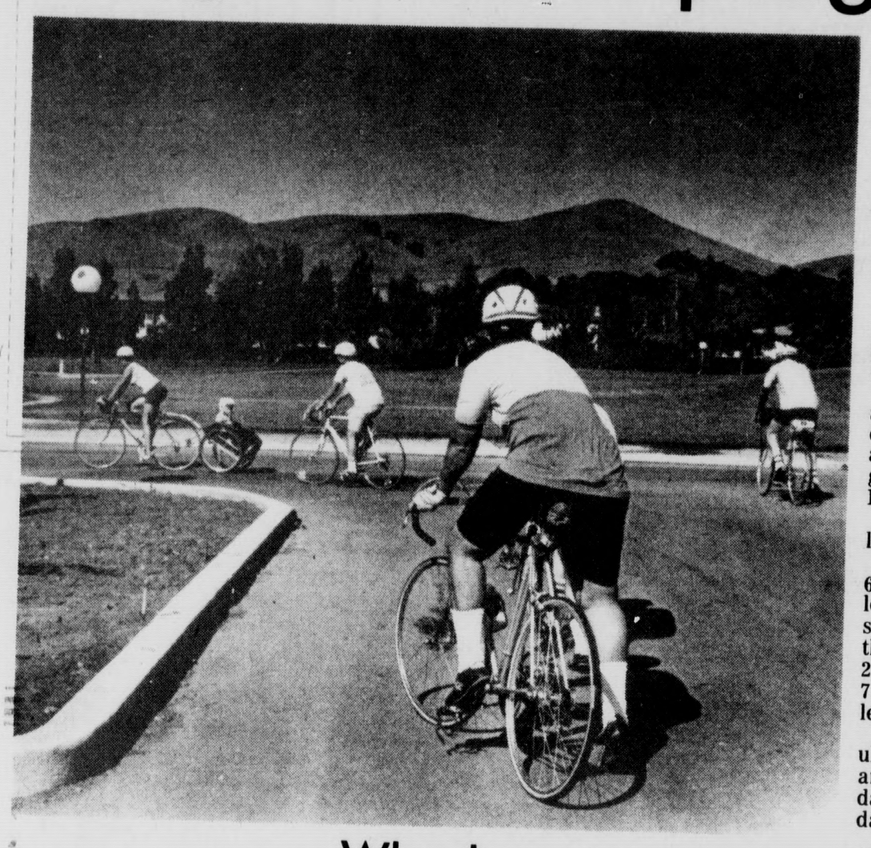
Pleasanton offers full range of swim programs



Wheels

This group of Valley Spokesmen bike riders at Shannon Center in Dublin wheeled off to catch up with other members headed for Danville yesterday morning. One youngster hitched a ride in a "Bugger."

PLEASANTON — The city's recreation department will b offer a full slate of fall swimming classes starting this month.

All classes are semi-private, five students per instructor with children placed into learning groups.

All teachers in the preschool program are experienced mature instructors, according to aquatics program director Dolores Bengston.

The fee is $12 for 12 lessons.

Classes for children 6-years-old and up, or at least in the first grade, are scheduled Mondays through Fridays, Sept. 12 to 23 and Sept. 26 through Oct. 7 at 4, 4:30 and 5 p.m. Ten lessons cost $5.

Adult classes are scheduled from Sept. 12 to Oct. 7 and Oct. 10 to Oct. 28, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Adult swimming lessons for all skill levels are at 11 a.m.; slim and trim, the water exercise classes, are slated at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Recreational swimming will continue until Sept. 25.

Beginning Sept. 6, the scheudule will be Saturdays and Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m., and Monday through Friday 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Swim and stay fit — lap swimming for adults — is programed from 6 to 7 p.m., Mondays through Fridays until Sept. 25, and on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from noon to 1 p.m. from Sept. 12 to Oct. 28.

Registration for all classes may be completed during any recreational swimming hours or on the first and last day of classes as space is available.

All classes have limited enrollment, Bengston advises.

Overflow crowd fills city's Aquatic Center

PLEASANTON — Some 200 kids filled the city's aquatic center for the annual "Splash Day" to vie for a host of ribbons and awards.

A morning of costumes, contests, games and demonstrations led off the festivities.

The highlight of the annual fete is the "stroke contest," open to all kids who have completed a Red Cross swimming course.

This year 65 students joined the contest, with ribbons and awards given to the top three places in each category.

Under eight beginners who won include Mark Hawtrey (1st place), Elizabeth Hubbard (2nd place) and Jead Hodge (3rd place).

Eight and over beginners: Leslie Stevens (1st), Robert Hamilton (2nd) and Kevin Maxson (3rd).

Advanced beginners: Cheryl Mori (1st), Linda Franke (2nd), and Eric Franke (3rd).

Some 3,000 swimmers enrolled in the learn-to-swim program at the Pleasanton Aquatic Center this year.

Ford pledge

PEKING (AP) — Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping says President Ford promised to break diplomatic relations with Taiwan if he was elected, but the Carter administration offered only to reduce the American embassy there to a liaison mission in exchange for full ties with Peking.

At a meeting Tuesday with 13 executives and directors of The Associated Press, Teng said efforts to normalize U.S.-Chinese relations suffered a setback during the visit of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've been quite friendly with the woman next door and recently she came over with a black eye and a badly bruised face. When I asked her about it, she said she had fallen in the night. I didn't believe this and I let her know. Finally, she broke down and told me that her husband beat her and that he'd been doing this periodically for years. I was shocked and suggested that if she wanted to leave him, my husband and I would do everything we could to help her. She seemed horrified by my suggestion, although she even admits that she doesn't love him. How can any woman today stay with such a man? — R.P.

DEAR R.P.: Many women stay with their husbands out of fear of reprisal either to themselves or their children. Of course, this is almost always a mistake because of the terrible psychological damage to both the woman and her children. The man who threatens further violence if his wife tries to leave is just as apt to commit these same acts in a rage that is set off for some different reason.

Often, the woman who accepts brutality is one who has grown up with it. She has either witnessed her father attack her mother, or she, herself, may have been beaten as a child by either parent or both.

Studies indicate that relatively few abused wives are masochists who instigate these attacks, consciously or unconsciously. They may be attracted to violent men, however, because they are reminded of their fathers.

Often such women have so little self - esteem and are so insecure that they can't imagine being able to function on their own. Their fears and anxieties about independence may outweigh their fears of their mates.

You might help her by pointing out that she may get assistance from centers in your neighborhood and that it would be better for her children to live in an atmosphere of relative harmony though she may have to support them by working part - time at even a menial job. You might also suggest that she get some professional counseling and guidance to help her make decisions and plans about her future.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: On weekends, my boyfriend and I really enjoy our drinking. We're not heavy mid - week drinkers but we're amazed at what happens once Friday night rolls around. I always seem to be able to hold my liquor much better than my boyfriend. This is odd because he's much more sociable than I and is apt to be the life of the party without ever taking a drink. I'm more withdrawn but I have to come out of my shell to protect him once he starts drinking. Why does alcohol affect us differently? — T.J.

DEAR T.J.: There are many reasons and the pattern isn't always consistent. One person may be affected by three drinks one evening and not even notice the same amount at a different time. It depends upon one's general state of health, how much the person's had to eat, whether or not he's emotionally upset, how much he weighs and a number of other things.

Studies show that introverts, for some reason, seem to be able to hold their liquor much better than extroverts. At least when it comes to mental functions, the timid introvert can drink his personality opposite under the table.

I suggest you both cut down on the amount you drink on weekends. This will help your budget and you'll also be able to enjoy each other's company more.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — What has happened to a man who in the nine years I have been his wife has been sexually vigorous and is suddenly impotent? His age may be important, but from what I have read, it is not necessarily so. He is 63. We are happily retired, but he keeps physically active as I do. He weighs no more than he did at 20, a trim 135 pounds on a 5 feet 7 frame. He does smoke — one to two packs a day. He does not drink.

I am trying to avoid accepting the possibility that I have done or said something to "turn him off," and I don't know whether to open the subject for discussion which might hurt him.

When we were discussing his proclivity for catching colds and the fact that I rarely got one, he rather testily pointed out to me, "don't forget, I'm ten years older than you." As a matter of fact I am only eight years his junior. I may be overly sensitive, but I think his remark about the colds had a double meaning.

Can you suggest anything to help him or to help me adjust to a lack of something very precious to me?

DEAR READER — The most obvious fact is that the two of you have a communication problem. A husbnd and wife should be able to talk freely to each other about the important things in their personal life, particularly where it involves or affects both. If you were able to communicate effectively your husband might not have much difficulty either.

You should try to discuss your personal feelings with your husband and try to make him feel secure in your love. Avoid being demanding or accusing. If you are successful in making him feel that you love him, no matter what, and that you are his best friend who is interested in his happiness above all else, he may want to talk about it.

He may be afraid of failure because he is getting older. It may be as simple as convincing him that he need not be successful every time any more and that the closeness and love is the important thing to share.

He is still young enough to be sexually active. More than half of American men older than 75 are. It follows that many by that age are not and often this is because of associated disease, particularly disease of the arteries that affects all parts of the body in addition to causing heart attacks or strokes.

Your personal relationship to each other is important. A couple having difficulties in their marriage is also likely to have difficulty in the bedroom. If this applies to you it might be a good idea to try to improve the personal relations in the marriage besides just sex. Loving attention outside the bedroom may result in receiving loving attention in the bedroom.

If your husband does have an impotence problem that doesn't correct itself, he should regard it as a symptom and have an examination. If you have other marriage problems you may profit from seeing a marriage counselor.

Q. "HOW ARE STALACTITES FORMED IN CAVES?"
A. STALACTITES ARE FORMED OVER LONG PERIODS OF TIME BY DRIPPING WATER THAT CONTAINS LIME. THE WATER EVAPORATES, BUT THE LIME IS ADDED TO THE GROWING STALACTITE

A stalactite (say sta-LAK-tight) is an icicle-shaped formation hanging from the ceiling of a cave.

Stalactites are formed over very long periods of time by dripping water. Each drop contains a tiny bit of lime or other mineral matter it has dissolved from the rock it has traveled through.

As it drips, some of the water evaporates, leaving behind a tiny deposit of the dissolved rock. The next drop adds to it, and the next.

The rock deposit gradually builds down, and in time it is a stalactite, a stone icicle hanging down from the ceiling.

Where the dripping water splashes to the floor, the stone material builds upward, like an upside-down icicle. This is called a stalagmite (say sta-LAG-might).

Sometimes the stalactite and stalagmite become so long that they meet to form a stone pillar. Many caves are filled with strangely shaped formations formed this way.

Opening lead — 10♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

This hand from "Bridge is Beautiful" shows how responder handles a good hand with weak three-card support for partner's opening bid. He starts with a two-diamond response. Maybe the hand belongs in notrump or in a minor suit. Then when South rebids to two hearts, North stops exploration and goes on to the heart game.

West opens the 10 of trumps and South ducks the first trump lead to keep control of the suit. East leads a second trump and South takes his ace. Four hearts is a cinch. There is one spade loser plus two trump losers. Can you see how to avoid that spade loser?

South cashes his ace of diamonds, enters dummy with a club, discards a spade on the king of diamonds, ruffs a diamond, enters dummy with a second club, ruffs dummy's last diamond and is pleased to see that all the diamonds have been played.

South plays more clubs. East's best defense is not to ruff, but even that does him no good. South simply throws him in with his last high trump and he is forced to lead away from the king of spades.

Solar loan bill waits in Assembly

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation creating a no-interest loan program for solar energy equipment in rebuilding homes destroyed by natural disaster is awaiting Assembly action.

But the Ways and Means Committee, before voting 13-3 approval Tuesday, removed all the funding from the program, which was to be $1 million.

Chairman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, said Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. could put money — perhaps more than $1 million — in his proposed state budget next year.

The Democratic governor urged use of solar systems in rebuilding homes destroyed by the Santa Barbara fire. The bill, SB 373, is carried by Sen. Omer Rains, D-Ventura, whose district includes the fire-ravaged area.

The Energy Commission would set guidelines for the program for loans that could not exceed $2,000 per dwelling.

Sierra castle that is headed for ruin

By SUSAN SWARD
Associated Press Writer

IONE (AP) — Up in the Sierra foothills sits a 120-room castle with 20 fireplaces. Nobody knows what to do with it, and local towns people's efforts to restore it have hit a dead end.

A few years ago a newspaper article excited some interest in the site, and a couple from Southern California wrote that they would like to be the castle's baron and baroness.

Once upon a time the castle, built in the 1890s as a state reform school, housed some youthful prisoners who later became famous — country and western singer Merle Haggard, tennis star Pancho Gonzales, actor Rory Calhoun, and Jack Benny's sidekick Rochester, state officials say.

But nobody — the tiny city of Ione, the rural county of Amador or the State of California — has come up with an idea and any money to take care of the castle.

"We're at a dead end. It will just fall down eventually, go to pieces. It's all just leading to decay," says Audrey Miller, the mayor of Ione.

The castle's roof is falling in. Many of its windows are broken. Birds, owls, pigeons and yes, even a fox, are the castle's residents.

Years ago the structure's furnishings were removed by the state and some of the material was used in restoration projects elsewhere.

Back in 1958 the state decided to quit using the old structure and knock it down, but local residents signed a petition and fought the move until the state abandoned the idea.

"It has really become something people expect to see there. It would be understandable if it fell down in the middle of the night," said C.A. Terhune, superintendent of the state-run Preston School of Industry which surrounds the castle.

"But to come in with bulldozers and drop it would cause some heavy concerns," said Terhune, who heads the Youth Authority facility for 400 offenders from 17 to 24.

People get excited about possibles uses for the castle when they see it, Terhune says, but the cost of revamping the castle always acts as a "major stumbling block."

This stumbling block has finally become too much for Mrs. Miller. She says she will write the local merchants' association to say the save-the-castle committee should be disbanded.

Leukemia campaign

The annual Door - to Door on Leukemia will take place in the six Bay Area Counties of Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo, and Santa Clara, as well as many communities located in Sacrament County, from Friday through Sept. 30, the Bay Area Chapter's Annual Residential chairperson, Mrs. Ardyce Handlery of Moraga, announced today.

More than 26,000 volunteers from these communities are now preparing to make their neighborhood rounds, hoping to reach the Chapter's goal $192,000 to broaden Society support of its research, patient aid, and educational programs.

This year the Leukemia Society is spending $1,558,000 to support research into the causes, best means of treatment, and cure for leukemia. These funds support 106 researchers at 55 leading institutions throughout the United States and abroad. In the Bay Area, 11 scientists at Stanford, and the University of California at Berkeley and San Francisco are receiving grants totaling almost $370,000.

Brown will decide on transit tax

SACRAMENTO (AP) — It's up to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. to decide whether counties with mass transit projects should be able to impose one-cent gasoline taxes.

A measure to give seven counties that permission was given final approval Tuesday on a 28-1 Senate vote.

The counties named in the bill, SB 213 by Sen. James Mills, D-San Diego, are Alameda, Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Sacramento, San Mateo and Santa Clara.

The voters of each county would have to approve.

The tax could be levied by a city with more than 500,000 residents, a transit district, a county transit commission, or a county board of supervisors if there is no transit commission

The funds could be used for planning, constrution and maintenace of mass transit guideways or busways, or to buy rights of way.

The tax is now 11 cents a gallon, including seven cents state and four cents federal taxes.

Move to prevent busnaps

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Legislature has approved of precautions against school bus hijacking.

They are in SB 1071, by Sen. George Zenovich, D-Fresno, sent to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. Tuesday on a 38-0 vote of the Senate.

Zenovich said his bill was an outgrowth of the kidnaping of 26 school children and their bus driver last year near Chowchilla.

The bill would require school districts to monitor school bus routes and to train bus drivers how to react to hijackers.

The highway patrol would draw up the regulations.

No more fireworks for kids

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Starting Jan. 1, the sale or transfer of so-called "safe and sane" fireworks to persons under 16 years old will be outlawed.

The bill, AB 882 by Assemblyman Louis Papan, D-Daly City, was requested by the state fire marshal and was signed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Papan said Tuesday that most fireworks-related fires are started by persons under 16.

"Safe and sane" fireworks are those approved for sale in some areas of the state, and they do not include such dangerous devices as firecrackers and cherry bombs.

Stand up and cheer

On Sports

Stand up and cheer. Raise your glasses. Fire a 21-gun salute.

A drum role, please. Sound the trumpets.

It's finally happened. Bob Krauss has broken 100 on the golf course.

Raise your arms. Krauss is, Rocky Balboa style.

"It was fabulous," he beams, recalling the big day. "It really was. It was something I tried to do for 10 years. As much as I've improved, there was still a block that I couldn't break it."

Krauss's miserable game of yesteryear has made a sudden turn. No longer is he walking every inch of a 6,000 yard course, banging balls in all directions, losing them on every hole, dribbling shots off the tee and spending long hours of frustation on the links.

Bob Krauss is non longer a handicap to the game. In fact, for the first time in his life, he feels proud to establish one. His game is better than ever, his mind totally at ease.

Breaking 100 may sound like a small feat, but for Krauss it's like climbing the highest mountain. He might scale Everest next.

"I don't know if you know what it's like to hit 10 balls out of bounds on every round," he shudders. "it once was that embarrassing and hard to live with. I was actually desperate to do anything that would improve my game."

Krauss picked up his first club at the age of 21, two years after an auto accident left one arm an inch and a half shorter than the other, and coupled with arthritis.

His left elbow still bothers him, but the same can no longer be said about his golf game.

He's got San Ramon National teaching pro Al Kane to thank for that. Kane, a hero in Krauss's book, has instilled new punch in a once punchless game.

Sure, Krauss had taken lessons in the past, learning the grip, distances, the basics of the swing. But in his own words, "it all proved to be futile."

He hooked up with Kane recently, decided to give it one last try and now must think the guy is a magican. Presto, just like that, the San Ramon pro has been performing a disappearing act with Krauss's game, whacking 30 strokes off over the last four months.

And the hefty Krauss, who's dropped his weight from 345 to 300 in recent months, has counted everyone.

"The difference in what Al taught me and what the other didn't, is to control the ball. He's taught me the theory of hitting the ball with control, easy and straight.

He really cares and that's important to me," continues continued the Gary Steel branch manager. "Your just not a $10 bill out on the tee. He really gets involved with your game.

Not long ago, Krauss was counting 130 strokes during a round rivaled only by the hilarity of the Barnum and Bailey circus. His first time out, he shot 164. Yes he did use golf clubs.

The day he snapped the century barrier, turning in a score of 97, Krauss mumbled the word "incredible" until his mouth ran dry. He's still in a trance and shocked by the newfound discovery of a rebuilt swing.

"I never thought I could do it," said the Berkeley resident. "It's still hard to believe that before I was taking lessons from Al I was shooting 130. He built a swing around me. It was hard for me to break 100 because I never knew I could do it."

A Nicklaus he's not, but a competitor he is. Now Krauss is determined to slice more strokes off his game.

"I feel that if I practice a lot, I could shoot in the 80's," he stressed. "It's just a matter of getting my mental attitude to the point that I don't collapse. I've done that. The last couple of rounds I've had lapses."

His shortened left arm hardly steps in the way of his revamped swing. It works as a bonus in eyes of Kane.

"Al told me the fact that my left arm is an inch and a half shorter is a benefit to me. I tolf him I've got this bad arm and can't hit the ball straight and he said so "so what". The only thing I learned from the other teachers is that your left arm has to be straight. That's not true.

"I've got so much confidence in my swing from the things he taught me, it's just unbelievable. He doesn't teach the Al Kane style of golf, His style of teaching changes for every person. It's just totally amazing."

Kane is just as intrigued with the pheominal happening taking place. He can hardly believe it himself.

"The guy has great willpower and determination," offered the pro of the new wizard on the fairways. "It's been instant success right in front of him.

KKIQ's return to sports

Football night in the valley

JOHN DUNN
Favors the valley

High school football returns to local radio on a regular basis for the first time in five years when KKIQ-FM, 101.7, begins a ten-game East Bay Athletic League game-of-the-week schedule tomorrow night.

Five EBAL schools will be the focus of the coverage; Livermore, Granada, Amador Valley, Foothill and Dublin. California, also within range of KKIQ's transmitter, has, for the time being, been eliminated from the schedule since the four-year old school plays its home games during the day.

According to KKIQ general manager Jerry Havel, daytime broadcasts are unprofitable. But, should the Grizzlies remain in contention late in the season, they could be on the air in one of five "wild card" games the station has set aside to insure interest during the final portion of the schedule.

Already confirmed are tomorrow night's (7:45 p.m., pre-game, 8 p.m., kick-off) Overfelt of San Jose at Granada contest and four others; Tracy at Amador, Sept. 16, Manteca at Livermore, Sept. 23, Monte Vista at Dublin, Sept. 30 and Amador at Foothill, Oct. 7.

When the Livermore station was known as KYTE, weekly prep football and basketball broadcasts were a fixture over valley airwaves. But, when Havel took charge, he halted the series.

"Our experience at KOBO in Yuba City-Marysvile, prior to coming here, was that most of the people who cared are already at the game," Havel explained. "It's different here, with so many high schools."

Yet, until Livermore and Granada charged headlong into a tailor-made football extravaganza — cross-town rivals meeting in the final game for the EBAL championship — Havel wasn't convinced of that difference.

2000th hit for McCovey

CINCINNATI — Willie McCovey drove in four runs with a double and a two-run homer to pace the San Francisco Giants to a 6-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday night.

McCovey's hits included the 2,000th of his 20-year career and his 489th homer, putting him 13th on the all-time home run list.

Giants' starter Ed Halicki, 13-10, also had a solo home run to account for the final Giant tally before giving way to reliever Gary Lavelle, who posted his 18th save.

Baseball's leading home run hitter, George Foster, slammed his 46th of the year and Joe Morgan hit his 22nd in a losing cause for the Reds.

Cincinnati starter Mario Soto, 2-5, lasted only four innings, giving up five runs.

The Giants scored three times in the first inning on a Derrel Thomas two-out single, a walk to Rob Andrews and a two-run double by McCovey, who then scored on a single by Marc Hill. The hit, McCovey's 2,000th in a 20-year major league career, drew a standing ovation from the Cincinnati fans.

Cincinnati got two runs in the first on a triple by Ken Griffey and Joe Morgan's 22nd home run of the year.

McCovey's 24th homer, with Darrell Evans on base following a single, lifted the Giants to a three-run lead in the third inning. McCovey's 489 is the highest home run total among active players.

Foster's fifth-inning solo home run was the eighth in the history of Riverfront Stadium to reach the top deck of seats. Foster has three of the eight, all hit this season.

Halicki's second big league homer and first of the year accounted for a Giant run in the sixth.

Army coach under gun

WEST POINT, N.Y. — Army hasn't had a winning football season since 1972 but the U.S. Military Academy's athletic board has informed Coach Homer Smith exactly what he has to do this fall to earn a new contract—win seven games and beat Navy.

The Associated Press learned the ultimatum was handed down last January when Smith, in the final year of a four-year contract, met with the board in what he apparently thought was a routine session.

"I left the meeting believing that a board had honored one contract and told me what to do to get another one—win seven games and beat Navy — only to discover that minutes to the meeting spell out ultimatum," Smith wrote in one of a series of letters to supporters of the Army football program.

"It was never mentioned as an ultimatum in the meeting," he said Wednesday while preparing his team for Saturday's opening game against Massachusetts. "We just talked about a real fine way to get a new contract. Six and seven were the only figures used, although we do not plan to limit the team to that many.

"The minutes of that meeting read differently to me than the words came across. I thought it was very dramatic; that's the stuff you read about in books and I'm living it. But when I left that meeting I felt like tying into this job like never before. I felt I could do it, IF..."

But even if all the ifs fall into place, Army will be a decided underdog against such powers as Notre Dame, ranked No.3 in the preseason AP poll; seventhranked Pitt, the defending national champion, and No. 12 Colorado. The Cadets must also face Boston College and Air Force on the road, plus the annual Philadelphia skirmish with Navy, a team they haven't beaten in four years.

Since that ultimatum, retired Maj. Gen. Raymond P. Murphy has been appointed as a permanent civilian athletic director, similar to the one at the Naval Academy. And, says Murphy, who took over in June: "I know of no ultimatum but, frankly, I haven't asked that question since I've been here. I don't think there's any ultimatum.

"You have to realize what kind of schedule we play and what the guy's working with. All factors have to be measured out. Any evaluation of a coach must take into consideration the players, the schedule, the coaching staff, the spirit."

Guillermo Villas, the No. 4 seed from Argentina, slashes a return to Ray Moore of South Africa yesterday in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships at Forest Hills. Villas souldy defeated the unseeded Moore with a lopsided 6-1, 6-1, 6-0 victory to advance to the semifinals of the $462,420 tournament.

Stove overpowers Austin

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Tracy Austin, tennis' 14-year-old princess in pigtails, saw her Cinderella story come to an abrupt end at the U.S. Open tennis championships Wednesday.

Big Betty Stove burst Tracy's bubble with a 6-2, 6-2 victory in the quarter-finals of the $462,420 national championships.

Miss Stove will meet the winner of Wednesday night's quarter-final between top-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and seventh-seeded Billie Jean King of New York.

The fifth-seeded Miss Stove's power game was just too much for tiny Tracy, who flitted about the court in her pink tennis dress, chasing Miss Stove's hard-hit shots from sideline to sideline.

It was a stunning contrast — the lumbering Betty, 6-foot, 160 pounds, against Tracy, barely 5 feet and 90 pounds. But the power, size and experience of the 32-year-old Miss Stove more than made up for her lack of quickness.

When it was over, the two embraced at the net, Miss Stove leaning down to reach her young opponent who figures to be back on the Stadium Court for many years to come. The crowd gave both an ovation as they left the court.

"She just overpowered me," said Tracy. "I was lucky to get in a rally. Most of the time she just put the ball away off her serve, and hit winners off mine. She was too strong for me."

Now Tracy can turn her attention to school. She enters the ninth grade at Rolling Hills, Calif. High School next week.

And Miss Stove can turn her attention to tennis and away from all the hoopla which surrounded her match against Tracy.

"There were so many outside factors," she said, "I had to concentrate extra hard. I never saw Tracy at all. I only saw the ball."

Third-seeded Ms. Wade, of Britain, will face No. 12 Wendy Turnbull of Australia and second-seeded Martina Navratilova, the Czech expatriate now playing out of Dallas, will meet No. 10 Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia in quarter-final action Thursday.

Meanwhile, Guillermo Vilas, the 25-year-old Argentinian lefthander, seeded fourth, reached the semifinals with a lopsided 6-1, 6-1, 6-0 victory over unseeded Ray Moore of South Africa.

Also advancing to the final four was 12th-seeded Harold Solomon, the clay court specialist from Silver Spring, Md., who beat 10th-seeded Dick Stockton of Carrolton, Tex. 6-4, 6-4, 6-2. 6

Vilas will meet Solomon in one of the men's semifinals on Saturday.

The other men's quarter-finals are to be played Thursday. Second-seeded Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., the defending champion, takes on fifth-seeded Manual Orantes of Spain.

Ex-coach Wright blasts SR district

Ed Wright, former San Ramon High wrestling coach, was fired recently and plans to start a new job in Georgia next week. He's angry with the way the administration handled his dismissal, though, and went so far as to say that "sports at San Ramon will suffer because of the administration."

"I've always thought that education at today's schools was primarily for the kids," the six-year coaching veteran said Tuesday in an interview before he left for the Deep South. "It just isn't that way at San Ramon, and I think the community knows it."

Why was he fired? "I was told I wasn't doing a good job in the classroom," he answered. "I teach math besides P.E., but the reason they gave me just isn't true. In six years of teaching math, I've been observed by an administrator for a total of one hour, and that was on the last class day of last year.

"I've repeatedly invited administrators to come in and observe me," he added. "But I've been ignored. I went to the head of the math department to find out the facts, and he told me whoever said I wasn't making it in the classroom was crazy."

"I know that most of the people I talk to are unhappy with the way this school distrcit is run," he says, "and that's borne out by the repeated failure of school bonds (nearly 2 to 1 in the last election). This is a community of big business administrators, and they know the situation. They're not about to fund a district with such poor money management."

Wright feels that despite the renovation going on at San Ramon, there remains "a long list of growing imbalances in the things given primary administrative attention" and what he believe "this school system needs most."

"Administrative non-support has hurt the kids' opportunities for education, both physical and in the classroom," he said. "Money's going for things besides the facilities and equipment the kids have needed for a long time."

"With this renovation," Wright explains, "we now have a super expensive false front on the girls' gym made of cedar. It's impractical and overpriced i will need to be painted when and if somebody decorates it with graffiti — costing even more money."

Wright continued, citing a pair of $14,500 tennis courts that can hold eight students at one time as a former administrative move he considered questionable.

"I taught classes of 40-45 kids, and they build expensive tennis facilities that can only accomodate eight ! That physically hinders the education of San Ramon's 800 students. The football field and gymnasium are a mess, dangerous in some areas, and we get $14,500 worth of facilities we don't need. This is a poorly-run operation."

Friends speculated that Wright's dismissal might be partly attributed to a series of newspaper articles he initiated, complete with verifying photographs, telling of the conditions of San Ramon's football field and related athletic facilities, and how they've caused serious injury during his six years there.

Wright admitted that the way things have turned out, though, "it only served to make the administration mad at me."

Pressure mounts on Devine, Sherrill

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine has tradition to uphold. Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill a national title to duplicate. But both underplay any pressure they feel to win on Saturday.

"This is not a must game for us," Sherill, who replaced Coach of the Year Johnny Majors, says of the teams' nationally televised opener. "It is a must game for Notre Dame. They have been there. They're No.1 in preseason polls. And there's no way they'll be national champions without beating Pitt."

Devine, speaking by telephone to a Pitt luncheon earlier this week, said: "Pittsburgh could be the No.1 team in the nation. And they could have three first-team All-Americans. It's going to be a good football game."

Devine says he is guardedly optimistic about his team, which has most of last year's defensive unit intact. But he says that is misleading because the defense was not as good last year as it was cracked up to be. "We gave up too many points. We weren't quite as good as we looked."

Notre Dame's secondary will have five returning lettermen, all starters at one time or another last year. In all, 11 defensive regulars are returning.

On offense, the Irish will have several new faces, including quarterback Rusty Lisch and wide receiver Kris Haines. Jerome Heavens, returning from knee surgery, will start at fullback. Tom Domin and Vagas Ferguson will be the halfbacks.

Sherrill says he really has only one halback so far, Elliott Walker, who teamed with Tony Dorsett last year in Pitt's backfield. The other starter will be Larry Sims, a 5-foot-10 sophomore.

Dorsett, now a pro, says he may fly to Pittsburgh for the game after his Dallas Cowboys play the Pittsburgh Steelers Thursday night. "If possible, I'd like to see the game from the sidelines. If my presence can help motivate, that's fine. But I don't know if I can help from there," he said.

Normandy Bay heads BM field

SAN MATEO — Joc Stable, Oliver, and Menchen's Normandy Bay, who captured the $25,000-added San Matean Handicap during the fair this summer, heads a field of six in today's $8,500 Foster City Purse at Bay Meadows.

The five-year-old son of Grey Dawn II will be packing the top weight of 120 pounds, and trainer Charlie Comiskey has enlisted veteran Merlin Volzke to ride.

Following the runnerup effort, Normandy Bay was sold privately, and in his first race for his new owners upset Five Up Player and Bacamys to capture the San Matean.

Bo Donna, winner of three races on the fairs this summer, engages Enrique Munoz at 116 pounds for today's feature.

Diego, a three-year-old son of Pia Star, won an alowance race this spring at Golden Gate Fields and a high price claiming event at Hollywood Park this summer. A.L. Diaz gets the call and will tote 111 pounds.

Completing the field is Aclamado 3rd with Bill Delia, Persiball, ridden by Rogelio Gomez, and Bold Journal, carrying Danny Winick.

See pg. 13 for Meadows results

Donald Weher's much-improved Bo Donna can be expected to give Normandy Bay his main competition.

Normandy Bay has been a real meal ticket this year, winning seven of 11 starts and nearly $51,000. He dominated the $6,500 starter allowance ranks this spring at Golden Gate Fields, jumped up to $8,500 for a win, and then took three $10,000 starter races at Hollywood Park before running second for $16,000.

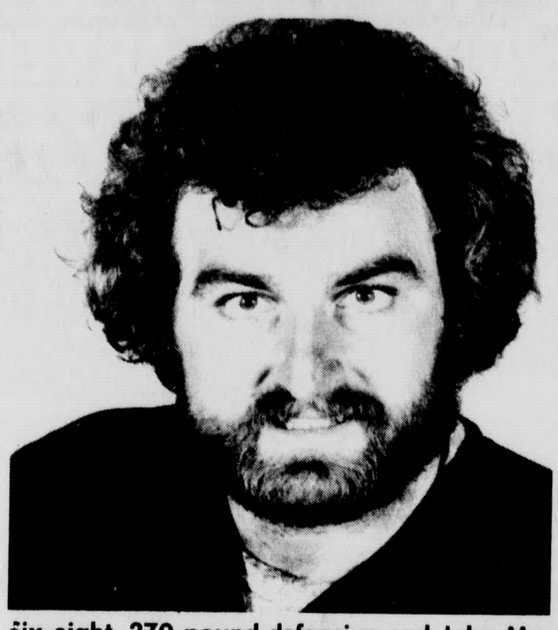
Matuszak finds job at Oakland



Six-eight, 270-pound defensive end John Matuszak is a key to the Oakland Raiders' 3-4 defense. Matuszak is a San Ramon resident who seems to have found a permanent job with the World Champions.

Pro football is a game played by large men.

Their bodies are justifiably claimed to be some fo the biggest and strongest in the world. Most pro players are devoted weight lifters, and muscles bulge in the most unlikely — and likely — places.

The Oakland Raiders are the world champion football team and consequently are at least as big and strong as other teams in the league.

Yet in the tiny Oakland Coliseum locker room full of large men after Saturday night's humiliation of the San Francisco 49ers, one man towered a full head over his teammates — much as he towers, both figuratively and literally, over offensive linemen.

John Matuszak, or "Toozze" as he is known, has found a home with the Raiders after tours of duty with three other NFL teams, and his imposing 6-8, 270-pound body dwarfs some of the linemen who are forced to block him.

"I feel very fortunate to be part of an organization like the Oakland Raiders," said Matuszak Saturday after helping the Raider defense totally dominate what passed for a San Francisco 49er offense. The Raiders won that game, 33-0, and sacked Plunkett one out of every four times he went back to pass. The Niners' long gain on the ground was an imposing nine yards and the visitors wound up with 82 yards in total offense.

Matuszak, a San Ramon resident who's looking for a home in the Oakland Hills, was a vital cog in that Raider defense Saturday and in the defense that won the Raiders the Super Bowl, but it didn't come that easy.

Matuszak had his problems in college, but settled down his last two years at the University of Tampa. His imposing size, quickness, and speed made him the number one pick in the draft five years ago, but his first season at Houston was less than spectacular. Next year, he found himself in Washington and Kansas City, almost discounted as a football player after just two years.

Matuszak admits that the problems were not all the fault of the teams he player for. "One time I didn't like the coach," he said, the other time I was just acting crazy."

That stopped when Al Davis picked him up for the Raiders and John Madden put him on the outside in the Raiders' 3-4 defense.

"We can't gamble as much," said Matuszak of the 3-4, which employs just three defensive linemen instead of four, "but we're lucky to have a linebacker in Ted Hendricks who was an All-American defensive end at Miami."

The 3-4, despite its post-Super Bowl publicity, was pretty much a mystery to the bedraggled 49ers Saturday, as they managed just five first downs. And the 49er game is more than just an exhibition game.

"It's the fact that we don't have to listen to all that garbage," Matuszak explained. "It was really a nice win for us."

HS grid is on the air

But, partly at the prodding of sales manager John Dunn, who also serves as the play-by-play announcer, KKIQ undertook the broadcast of the big game as a one-shot try. It worked so well, the station followed up with a broadcast of the Washington-Granada North Coast Section play-off game the next week.

"The response was terrific, we had a lot of good comments," recalls Havel. "That proved to me that it was worthwhile."

An added plus for the play-off broadcast was the fact that Granada played Pinole Valley the same night in Livermore, bringing a forest of portable radios to the Livermore High School stadium, where the Mats' game was played.

KKIQ was required to pay a $100 fee for the broadcast rights to the NCS play-off game, but pays nothing for regular season EBAL contests.

"Any commercial station that does an NCS basketball or football championship event is required to pay for the rights, just like the A's or Cal football," explains NCS commissioner Paul Gaddini. "We split the proceeds between the member schools."

With the footbal successes behind it, KKIQ presented another series of sports broadcasting early this summer, with veteran race-caller Tod Creed phoning in with results and pay-offs from the Alameda County Fair horse race meeting.

"The races were something else," said Havel, shaking his head. "The first race went off about 1:30, but Tod wouldn't call for the first time until after 3:00. We'd get 20 or 30 calls a day asking when the results were coming on.

"We're staying with the races, that was terrific," Havel continued enthusiastically, adding, "The whole thing only cost me a case of wine. Tod's a good friend, he didn't want any compensation, so I sent him the wine."

The racing recaps were, indeed, a budget operation compared to the hauling of equipment and phone line installation required for a live, remote, sports broadcast.

Not to fret, says Dunn.

"We don't do anything we don't make money at," the slender ex-college play-by-play man grinned. "The advertiser gets a whole , week-long, package. Every time a promotion for a football advertiser comes on during the week, we'll mention the game."

Neither punn nor Havel would disclose the exact rate Crown Chevrolet, El Vacquero restraunt, the United States Army, Romeo's Big Meal, Jeans 'n' Things and first National Bank of Pleasanton will pay for their ads.

They will be lower than those for the station's usual pop/soft rock format, but the full value will apparently come from the goodwill generated and the package deal for the advertisers.

Dunn, who has announced high school games in New Mexico and Colorado as well as those of Armstrong State College in Savannah, Georgia, is enthused about this year's three-man broadcast crew.

The Distillery—an ocean treat

One indicator of a restaurant is its regular clientele. If they come early, and stay late, the place is good.

At Moss Beach Distillery the crowd arrives before business hours. There, hard by the Pacific Ocean, appetites are whetted on late summer fog, passions spent in the front seat of a sedan perched on a sea-swept lookout.

A couple of hours of that and people are ready to eat. Easier to please, too, though the Distillery could satisfy celibates.

Moss Beach is one of those sleepy, forgotten oceanside villages on Highway 1, five miles south of Pacifica. The Distillery is at the end of a dirt road winding from the highway to the ocean's cliffs.

The building is a weather-battered octagon with one huge vertical crack running through the plaster. It looks like a cupcake ready to be halved, and shared by friends.

Inside, there is little wall space (what exists being purple stucco). The dining room is given over to picture windows affording a 180-degree vista of the Pacific, except when fog drapes a white curtain around the glass.

Dinner starts in the bar and lounge, where the regulars gather under a fading fresco of a bull and matador. The drinks are cheap. Heaping platters of steamed clams make a good holdover until the dining room opens. Regulars dip them in a cup of garlic butter, then drink the remaining liquid like soup.

Dinner at the Distillery is steak and salad bar style, though the menu offers a more extensive selection of beef and seafood than most restaurants of that persuasion.

Hot, homemade bread is served, with lots of those earth. Unfortunately it tastes more like earth than grain, but that is a minor disappointment.

Not much to say about the salad bar, it's like any other one, green and leafy.

A better alternative is Boston Clam Chowder. The flavor is sharp and clear, and the broth is not weighted down to wallpaper paste thickness. A perfect soup.

Delicious filets of Red Snapper in lemon sauce are the pride of the dinner menu. The fish is firm, and served in large portions with few bones. The sauce is tart, but stops short of a full pucker. Rice pilaff adorns the plate, moist and excellent.

Steak and lobster at $9.50 is good, and given today's prices, reasonable for the big portions.

Besides steak and prime rib cuts, the menu features rack of lamb and seafood cioppino, pleasant diversions from most formula restaurants.

If that's not enough, there's always parking lot love.

Livermore's finest Chinese restaurant

LIVERMORE — Emperor's Garden without a doubt takes top honors as the No. 1 Chinese restaurant in Livermore.

Where else can a person go to enjoy outstanding Far East dining while listening to subtle bacground music such as the Beatles' "Penny Lane." Good music is just one quality that makes Emperor's Garden exceed all others in this fair city of exotic eaters.

The service at this stylish Peking-type structure — located in the heart of Livermore across from the old Carnegie building on Third Street — definitely puts the "Garden" in the first class bracket.

Everyone who works there casts a warm, mellow glow about the place from the waiters decked out in neat gold jackets to the cashier and ushers — a pleasant change from the crude "here's your hamburger" type help.

The interior is moderately plush from the blue velvet curtains guarding the huge window-wall to the green trim garden on the outside.

A 100 gallon glass tank houses a couple of six-inch fantail goldfish who lazily swim in their underwater world invaded only by a frantic eel and friends.

The whole place is decked in Chinese decor with hanging laterns setting off the blue and green shaded wallpaper.

Ask to be escorted to one of the "Emperor's" booths which are slightly more private from the main dining room because of the hanging strings of beads that petition off the imitation leather benches.

All the tables are set with inverted folded napkins, silverware, and a white vase with flowers resting upon a long gold table cloth.

And by the time you've taken in some of the sights the Emperor has, a waitress promptly arrives to see if you would like a bowl of won ton soup.

Only a fool would turn down such a bargain. Although an order of this delight shakes $2.25 from the pocket book, what goes into their won ton soup makes it well worth the price. It comes with slices of pork as well as the other ingredients of this hot tasty broth.

Another similar deal is an order of egg rolls priced at $1.85. They are served quartered and have been known for their "nice and crunchy" texture. All in all, the egg rolls are thick and filling.

An excellent choice for the hearty eater is an order of Sweet and Sour Pork. This saucey, but slightly candied dish is fixed with helathy, crisp cuts of pork and long sliced onions and peppers. The "sour" side of the vegetables definitely gets "sweetened" up after simmering with the maraschino cherries. Sweet and Sour Pork is a steal for a mere $2.95. It is guaranteed to fill you up, if not have some left over for a couple hungry muts at home.

The "Garden" also has a dark, comfortable bar reserved for quiet acquaintances apart from their dimly lit dining room. They have a complete wine list, fantastic cocktails, and a wide range of beer to choose from.

They host luncheons as well as dinners and banquets in addition to a take out service. Emperor's Garden is open every day of the week with hours Monday through Saturday from 11:30 a.m. until 9:30 p.m. and from 3 p.m. until 9:30 p.m. on Sundays.

The Yin Yin, another Chinese establishment on First Street in Livermore is under the same ownership as Emperor's Garden.

For reservations call 443-6700 or stop by their place at 2180 Third St.

Comforting TV view from 'Inside the Cuckoo Nest' shown tonight on KQED

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you saw "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and wondered if the movie accurately depicted life in a mental hospital, you'll definitely want to see public TV's "Inside the Cuckoo's Nest."

You might be relieved after seeing this 90-minute documentary, produced by KQED in San Francisco for airing tonight over public TV's national hookup (some stations may televise it later).

Filmed at Oregon State Hospital, where the 1975 movie starring Jack Nicholson and Louise Fletcher was made, the show's aim is to study if what we saw in the movie was the McCoy or merely good drama.

Aiding the study with occasional narration and explanation is Dr. Dean Brooks, who played the head of the movie's mental hospital and in real life is superintendent of the Oregon State Hospital in Salem.

I suspect some in his field will view his participation in tonight's show as a belated effort to counter whatever bad image of mental hospitals Nicholson's powerful movie caused.

But I'd call it a valuable effort to help lay viewers understand the actual treatmment of mental illness, at least in his hospital, and in the process show how it differs from the make-believe of the movie.

The program starts slowly, with various comments by several supporting actors in the movie about their experiences making the film. Miss Fletcher, who won an Oscar for her portrayal of stern, authoritarian Nurse Ratched, also discusses her role briefly.

Bear with all this, because the show immediately improves as it juxtaposes key scenes from "Cuckoo's Nest" with what KQED's film crew shot at the hospital.

Example: The movie showed patients docilely lined up for their daily medication. They weren't told what it was, but it clearly was dispensed to control them, not help them.

The "Inside" view: Patients know what they're getting, why and discuss it with a hospital "treatment team" of experts.

One of the strongest, most terrifying scenes of "Cuckoo's Nest" showed Nicholson receiving electro-shock treatments.

Strong drama, but technically wrong, Dr. Brooks says. The patients don't get the treatment cold, as in the movie, but are first anesthetized and given drugs to reduce convulsions.

An ensuing scene of such a treatment is an extremely disturbing sight, but infinitely more humane than what folks saw in "Cuckoo's Nest.

You may worry that "Inside" grossly invades the privacy of the patients it shows. But KQED says no filming was done until the patients, their doctors and the patients' families all gave permission.

And, says executive producer Zev Putterman, all the patients had the right, after seeing the completed show, to delete the scenes in which they appeared. None did, he added.

About People

James Coburn will play world-weary private eye Hamilton Nash in "The Cain Curse" for CBS. The show, to be shot on location in New York beginning next month, will be Coburn's first dramatic television appearance in a number of years.

Broadcasting Profits Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television broadcasters enjoyed a huge 60.3 per cent increase in profits in 1976 compared with 1975, the Federal Communications Commission recently reported.

Pre-tax profits rose to $1.25 billion compared with $780.3 million in 1975.

It was a dramatic rebound from the recession of the previous year when the rise in profits was slowed to 5.7 per cent. The biggest jump before 1976 reported by the FCC was 41.9 per cent in 1972 following a dismal 1970-71 period.

The three commercial networks — ABC, CBS and NBC — enjoyed a 41.8 per cent increase in profits, not quite as spectacular as the 70.7 per cent increase reported by the 686 non - network-owned stations. The 15 network-owned and operated stations had a 50.4 per cent increase.

The TV broadcasting industry reported revenues of almost $5.2 billion, up 27 per cent from 1975. This included gross advertising revenues plus all other broadcast revenues, minus commissions. Expenses increased by 19.1 per cent.

Advertising expenditures for television broadcasting, as reported to the FCC, were $6.03 billion in 1976, up 27.7 per cent from 1975. This includes $992 million in agency commissions, but does not include the cost of commercials or programs supplied by advertisers.

The $6.03 billion in TV advertising expenditures included $2.67 billion for network advertising, up 24 per cent from 1975; $1.92 billion for national and regional advertising, up 32.7 per cent, and $1.43 billion for local advertising, up 28.2 per cent.

The three national networks reported revenues of $2.1 billion, up 26.5 per cent from 1975, with profits of $295.6 million. Revenues of network-owned and operated stations increased by 23.1 per cent to $487 million with profits rising to $159 million.

The 686 other stations in the industry increased their revenues 28.1 per cent to $2.59 billion and their profits totaled $795.6 million.

The three networks reported spending $218 million on their news and public affairs operations in 1976, compared with $160 million in 1975.

LIVERMORE — Navy Hospital Corpsman Second Class Randall W. Killian, whose wife Brenda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Hallomb of Camelia Drive, is currently on an extended deployment in the western Pacific.

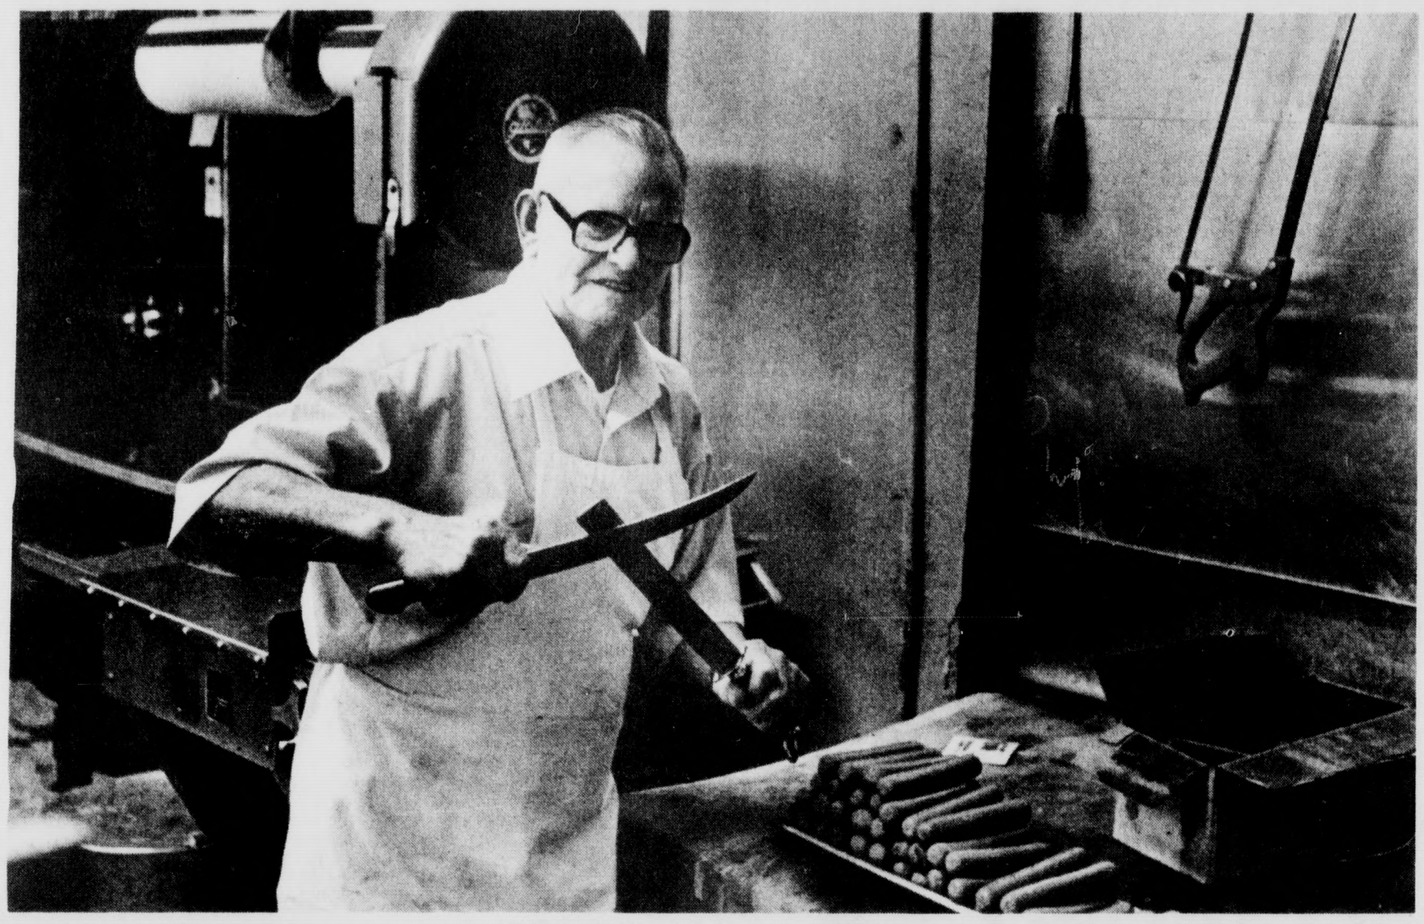
Far-flung slice of life

It's a long way from the Valley to Castleblayney, County Monaghan, Ireland. But that was once home for Charlie Kelly who, for the past 30 years, has owned and operated Kelly's Meat Market in Livermore.

In that time Kelly has moved the shop twice but never more than a few blocks from its location simce 1950, 2124 First St.

Profile

This part of a continuing series of profiles of Valley business people who have provided the same service for at least two decades.



Charlie Kelly of Kelly's Meat Market

Kelly said he first learned the meat business from his stepfather and brought it up when he landed in New York in 1927. His parents had lived in Boston before he was born but returned to Ireland after his father served in the U.S. Navy.

In the years between his arrival and joining the Navy during World War II Kelly went to sea as a ship's butcher and later managed the meat department of an A&P supermarket on Long Island, N.Y. There he met his wife Brigit, another Irish native. They were married in 1939.

During the was Kelly served with the Navy "Seabees" in the Aleutian Islands and at Camp Parks where he decided the Valley was the place to be.

Livermore has been home ever since and though Kelly has not returned to Ireland since 1933 he still keeps track of his relatives in the British Isles. One neice owns a hotel in Suffolk, England, and a calendar with its picture hangs in the shop.

The Kelly's have a son; John, a commercial airline pilot and a daughter, Patsy.

Rancher faces hearing on cattle charge

HAYWARD — A preliminary hearing for Lee Amaral on charges of unfair business practices in connection with his ranching activities has been rescheduled for Sept. 20 in Alameda County Superior Court Dept. 30.

Amaral has been charged with unfair business practices because he allegedly branded and transported and consigned over to sale cattle not belonging to him.

Amaral told The Times recently that he runs a big operation embracing perhaps a half dozen separate grazing areas in the Valley. Where one or two strays get mixed in mistakenly with small operators, the numbers get bigger in his operation so it sounds worse than it really is, said Amaral.

LLL man's post

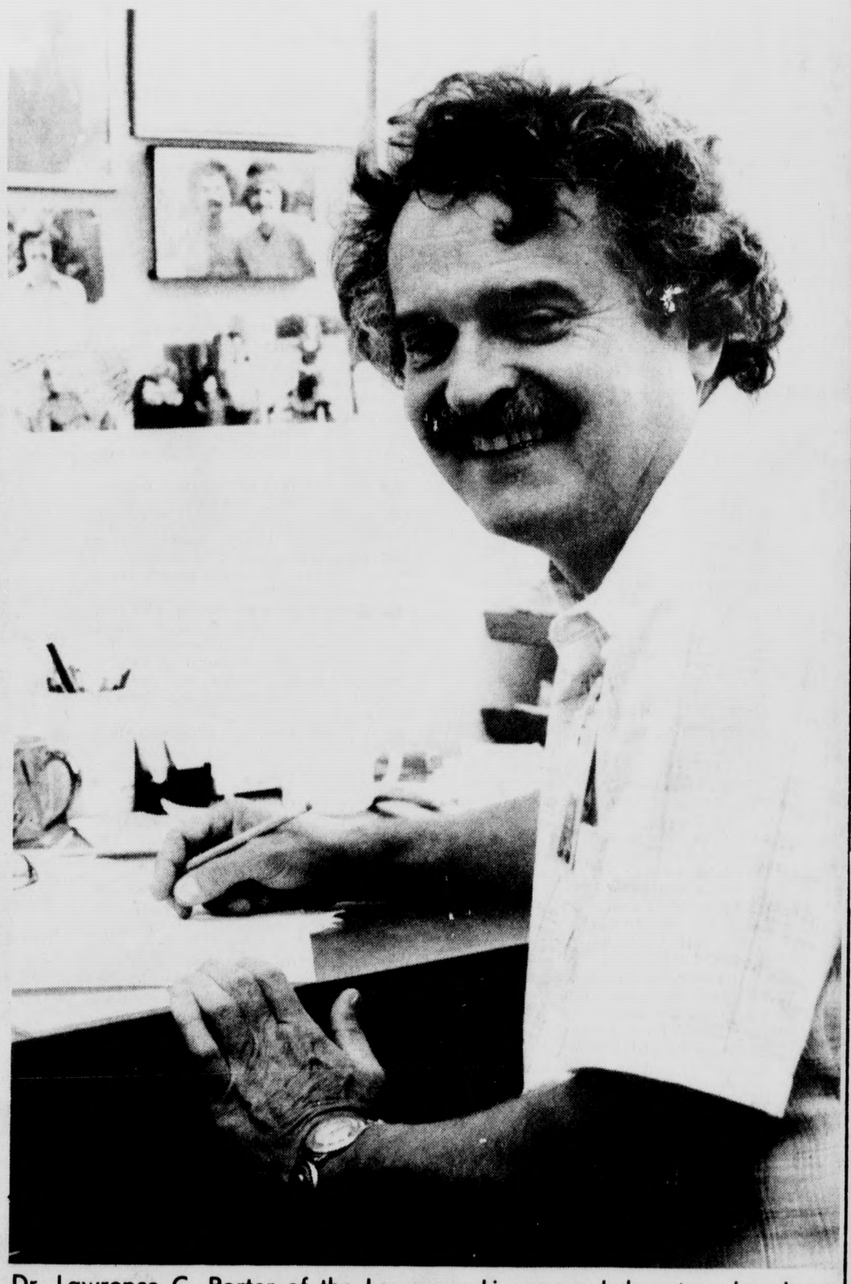
LIVERMORE — Dr. Lawrence C. Porter, organization development specialist at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratry, has been elected to the board of directors of the National Training Laboratories (NTL), a prestigious center for individual and organization development programs.

Founded in 1947, NTL pioneered the concept of sensitivity training and is today a leading developer of personal growth programs.

The goal of NTL's organization development programs, Porter says, is to help managers and people who work in teams deal with intragroup issues.

"Organization development is concerned with the process of the way ppople work together, rather than the actual content of the work they do," Porter says. "Organization development techniques are designed to resolve conflicts within the group, make grop meetings more effective, improve the decision making process and other related matters."

Porter, 51, was elected one of 12 NTL board members after a nationwide poll of the NTL membership. The board members govern NTL activities, monitor the budget and do long-range planning for the organization.



Dr. Lawrence C. Porter of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory has been elected to the board of directors of the National Training Laboratories.

Headquartered in Arlington, Va., NTL offers frequent workshops across the country in personal growth, interpersonal learning and management skills. LLL regularly sends employes to the week-long management workshops.

Porter, who served as an NTL central staff member for five years, will attend a training session for new board members in Arington this month. He will assume his post at the next NTL board meeting in December.

Porter, who holds a doctoral degree in English literature, spent 17 years as a college professor before beginning his "second career" as an organization development specialist. The Oakland resident is also on the board of directors of the Organizational Development Network, a 1,400-member consulting group, and he edits that organization's journal, the OD Practitioner.

At LLL, Porter is part of a four-member organization development team that works to make group interactions more effective.

Alameda County Water District

Neighbor presses pollution suit

Now that the Valley finally is doing something about polluting Alameda Creek with its sewer effluent, why is Fremont's water agency suing over the problem?

Harry Brumbaugh, a member of Alameda County Water District which filed the $1 million suit against Livermore and Valley Community Services District, gave The Times benefit of his insights yesterday.

Brumbaugh, who has served on the board since 1964, said he was one of the more militant members about going to court over the past few years, but others counseled a wait and see attitude.

Finally the board decided to go ahead and file the suit in hopes of not only insuring the Valley does act on the problem, but also to make up some of the costs ACWD feels it has incurred in the past.

Many of the costs have to do with staff time, said Brumbaugh.

"We've had to send staff people to many meetings of the Regional Water Quaiity Control Board whenever the problem has been on their agenda," said Brumbaugh. "There has been a lot of checking and double-checking and that involved expenses to the district."

One thing that had to be checked was VCSD and Livermore's claims about the quality of their effluent flowing into Alameda Creek. (The creek also carries the fresh water supply that Fremont uses to recharge its underground water reservoir.) ACWD didn't trust the claims of the upstream dischargers.

Another reason for $1 million in damages is the degradation suffered by Fremont's ground water, said Brumbaugh. Experts will have to assess the extent of the damage, but Brumbaugh feels the damage is real.

"The primary thing that has us worried is that things accumulate in the undergrondund water supply," said Brumbaugh. "They may say that the quality of water is not bad, but some of us think that the harmful pollutants have accumulated over the years. Consultants will have to assess it."

Many "good people" inthe Valley over the years have tried to work hard toward a solution, said Brumbaugh, and he's not angry with them. But the time has come for a solution, he said.

The ACWD board recently has discussed Harlan Geldermann's new town proposal for the Las Positas Valley. Board members asked the staff to check into it because if it means that much more pollution to Fremont's ground water, then perhaps it ought to be opposed by ACWp, said Brumbaugh.

San Ramon has new planning unit

On Oct. 1, for the first time in the history of the San Ramon Valley, a local official commission will be making decisions on future residential and commercial development in the Valley.

At Monday's Board of Supervisor's meeting, Supervisor Eric Hasseltine presented for board approval, a list of six local residents chosen from 51 applicants, to join current planning commissioner Andrew Young of Alamo on the newly formed board.

Charles Lowell, James Graham and Jack Marzluft comprised the selection committee that chose the four men and two women to replace the existing San Ramon Valley Community Planning Committee.

Juanita Burow, current chairman of the San Ramon Valley Community Planning Committee and owner of Red Carpet Realty in Danville; and Linda Best of Alamo, an active community volunteer, who has worked part time in supervisor Hasseltine's office, are the two female members.

John Olander, a Diablo resident who owns a food processing company in Concord; John Meakin, of San Ramon, who is a member of the National Labor Relations Board and was a city council candidate in the 1976 bid for area incorporation; Dick Kennett, an attorney in Walnut Creek, who resides in San Ramo Nn and currently chairs the P-2 committee; and Nelson Wright, a 26-year Danville resident who runs an industrial property management firm, will make up the rest of the board.

Jim Graham, who sat on the selection committee, said the group was delighted at the overall quality of all those who applied for the positions, and felt that they could not have selected six more equally talented people from among the applicants.

The decision on the six was arrived at unanimously a few hours after the selection committee had finished interviewing and reviewing the applicants.

According to County Planning Director Anthony Dehaesus, the county will assign assistant director Harvey Bragdon to handle the committee meetings which have been tentatively, scheduled for the evenings of Oct. 12 1 and 26 in the new cafeteria addition at San Ramon High School in Danville. Dehaesus said the county hopes to change the meetings to Monday nights by next November.

SRV homeowners ask controls on county issuing new permits

Noticably distressed by the ramifications of another large development on their already overcrowded schools, the San Ramon Homeowners Association nevertheless approved a plan presented by Shappel Industries last Thursday for development of the remaining 120 acres of residentially zoned Bishop Ranch property.

Members then voted to write to the Board of Supervisors asking that they consider "regulating the rate at which building permits are issued to be consistent with the rate at which the San Ramon community can provide services — especially schools.

"Until someone comes up with a solution to our school situation, it is unfair to punish single developers, especially one we've talking with for nearly two years now," board member Dave Stegman told his colleagues.

Earlier plans proposed by Shappel had called for as many as 349 homes on the land adjacent to the parcel intended for Montevideo School. Emphatically the homeowners association had demanded lower density, more open space and larger green belt areas.

The newly-proposed development would contain only 305 homes and 7.8 acres of linear park area. Designed this time by architect Dan Coleman, it would follow very closely his original Bishop Ranch masterplan.

"Everything we have asked them for they have provided, board member Mike Wahlig noted in defense of the plan.

But board members Tobe Tobias voiced strong opposition. "Our schools are badly overcrowded already," he said. "And another large development like this isn't going to help. If we i don't address the school issue, then who will?"

The others in the group supported the developer, despite their obvious sympathy for Tobias's point.

"They have come here in good faith, and I feel we have to give them approval," Gerogia Jacka told the group. "If we say 'no' on the basis of our schools, then we have to say 'no' to every development."

In other business, the homeowners voted to recommend a plan proposed by Pacific Concepts, Inc. for a racquet ball and athletic club complex across from the old Filper plant on Old Crow Canyon Road.

The plan proposed an attractive Spanish style building to house 10 courts, a lounge and refreshment area, several workout rooms, whirlpool and sauna facilities, a pro shop and a nursery.

"I like your plan and I think you are coming in at a good time," Stegman told the developers. "I think this sport is going to absolutely explode, and the community is really going to go for it."

In further business, the homeowners approved a plan by Pacific Scenes for a 50 unit detached home condominium complex on the corner of Broadmoor and Montevideo.

The plan is essentially an updated version of one already approved by the county for another developer. Tom Showalter told the homeowners that his company plans to spread the houses $further apart, add nine more two story models, and change the overall roof lines to give the area more feeling of space.

Merit Breakthrough Remains Unduplicated.

'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco makes MERIT unique among low tar cigarettes.

Since the introduction of MERIT, a number of other low tar brands have come along. But MERIT remains unique—the only low tar cigarette with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

MERIT delivers what others can only promise: the flavor of higher tar cigarettes. The kind of flavor made possible by a breakthrough in tobacco technology.

Here's how it was done:

By cracking cigarette smoke down into separate elements, researchers were able to isolate certain flavor-rich ingredients that delivered taste way out of proportion to tar.

These flavor essentials were then packed into MERIT, giving it extraordinary flavor.

Taste tests against a number of higher tar cigarettes proved it.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested. Cigarettes with up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.
